SECRET HEARING ON CLUBS; POLICE CLAIM DRIVE BALKED

SENATE O. K.'S RETIREMENT OF JUDGES

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 26—With administration leaders hoping it will solve the Supreme Court issue, the Senate this afternoon passed the House bill authorizing high court justices to retire voluntarily at the age of 70.

The bill now goes to the White House for President Roosevelt's approval.

The bill passed by a vote of 76 to 4.

Those voting against it were Senators Hollow, of South Dakota, and Moore, New Jersey, Democrats; Bridges of New Hampshire and Johnson, of California, Republicans.

BRIDGES PLAN BEATEN

It passed the Senate after a brief but sharp debate, in which Senator Hiram W. Johnson (R) of California and Senator Edward R. Burke (D) of Nebraska, publicly declared they would have no respect for any justice taking advantage of it so long as the President sought to enlarge the membership of the court. Senator Robinson (D) of Arkansas indignantly disagreed with their attitudes.

Six justices, including Chief Justice Hughes, will be eligible for retirement under the bill.

Only one amendment was offered. It came from Senator Bridges (R.), of New Hampshire, who sought to postpone the effective date of the act for four years. It was beaten without a record vote.

RETIRE AT 70

The bill authorizes the justices to retire at the age of 70 after ten years on the Federal bench. It also authorized the chief justice to assign any retired justice, if the latter were willing, to services on the lower Federal courts.

This provision was inserted as a means of making the bill constitutional since the Supreme Court has already upheld the constitutionality of a similar act granting retirement privileges to Federal circuit and district judges.

Senate consideration of the measure lasted now than an hour.

Woman Is Dead, Diary at Side

With a diary of short-hand notes close by, Miss Jessie L. Booker, 38, was found dead in her gas-filled apartment at 1576 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton.

Miss Booker, daughter of Mrs. Carrie L. Booker of Warren street, Brighton, was believed to have been dead for almost eight hours when the body was found.

She was discovered lying on a mattress in the kitchenette. The diary was near at hand on the floor.

POLICE SEARCH DIARY

Police took the diary in the hope that translation of the notes might lead to an explanation of the untimely death of Miss Booker.

Police said the apartment was well-furnished and showed no signs of disorder. They said relatives had told them that Miss Booker said she was despondent last Tuesday. She has not been employed for some time.

The body was discovered by David W. Chesebie, superintendent of the building, when he smelled illuminating gas in the hall. He entered the apartment and found the body and the gas jets of the stove open.

"BEAUTIES GET JOBS"

According to neighbors in the house, Miss Hooker had recently confided that she was worried because of lack of finances. They quoted her as saying she was "sick and discouraged" over being unable to get permanent employment.

They said she claimed that "younger and better looking" women got all the jobs.

Other friends of the dead woman said she had insisted that she could support herself and for this reason refused to live with her mother who resides only a short distance away. They said Miss Booker had been unsuccessful in attempting to borrow some money a few days ago.

Medical Examiner William J. Brickley said it was "obviously suicide."

Radio 'Fireside Talk' by President March 9

Washington, Feb. 26 (INS)—President Roosevelt is going to make a radio address to the country on the night of March 9—another of his "fireside talks"—it was announced today.

Although the subject of the President's talk was not given, it is presumed that he will deal with his judicial reform program, which has stirred up the bitterest fight in Congress for a generation. Mr. Roosevelt simply said, however, that he was going to talk about "the state of the nation."

The date, March 9, is that on which public hearings will open before the senate judiciary committee on the judicial bill.

The chief will be broadcast nationally over the major networks of the country from 10:30 to 11 p. m., E. S. T.

Mr. Roosevelt will leave Washington the following day for a stay of a few days or two weeks at Roosevelt simply said, however, Warm Springs, Ga.

Griswold's Socialite Wife Wins Divorce

Lillian Lowell Griswold, socialite actress-wife of Merrill Griswold, wealthy Boston banker and attorney, won a divorce today in the uncontested session of Suffolk probate court.

The grounds were cruel and abusive treatment and the charges were that Griswold, years older than his attractive spouse, called her names like "Frowzie," "swine" and "scamp, ox" sometimes in front of friends.

The petitioner, mother of a seven-year-old daughter, testified that they were married on October 3, 1928, but that she had an unhappy time of it from a short time afterwards.

PLUNGED DOWN STAIRS

Once, she said, she was pushed down the front stairs in a long evening dress.

"My husband suddenly went economical on me," she declared. "He turned off the lights and I fell down the whole flight of stairs."

At a Thanksgiving Day party in 1935, Griswold began calling her names and insulting her in front of a number of guests, she said.

WINS $1250 A MONTH

Another time, when she was packing a suitcase to visit friends in Bar Harbor, Me., her husband started to quarrel with her, slamming the suitcase cover on her wrist, then gave her a elbow against a mantelpiece, she declared.

"I chipped a piece from a tooth when it struck the mantelpiece," she told the court.

Last August, she said they were at the Maine summer, including the daughter, and when she started to correct the girl's table manners, Griswold took her to task.

"You'd better shut up. The baby has better table manners than you have!"

Judge Frederick J. Dillon granted Mrs. Griswold her divorce decree, custody of the child and $1200 a month alimony.

GAS HURLERS FIGHT, ROUT 'SIT-DOWNS'

Chicago, Feb. 26 (INS)—Shooting gas from guns, hurling hand grenades and using a strange improvised battle tower to gas the upper floors, the sheriff and a force of 125 deputies today drove 96 sit-down strikers from the Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation plants in North Chicago.

Fifty of the "sitters" Sheriff Oscar Dominguez and his deputies and a dozen noncombatants, including newspapermen suffered from effects of the gas bombs.

The attack on the buildings of the corporation was made at dawn after sit-downers had held the buildings for nine days, most of the time in violation of a court injunction.

Two types of gas contained in cartridges and hand grenades, were used to dislodge the strikers, police aides. 28-year-old Joseph Agner, was reported in critical condition after the battle from gas.

One deputy, John Anderson, was severely injured. Attempting to throw a gas grenade through a window, the missile hit the wall and exploded almed in his face. It was feared he may be permanently blinded.

Unable to cope with the billows of nauseating, blinding fumes released by the deputies, who had been repulsed in a similar struggle a week ago, the strikers tumbled and staggered from the plants into the arms of Sheriff Lawrence Doo-

Youth Near Gas Death In Row With Bride

MRS. JOHN CLIFFORD

Wanted Home of Own, She Says

Wife Tells of Many Quarrels Since November Wedding

Efforts of a 23-year-old Roxbury husband to effect a reconciliation with his 19-year-old estranged bride of three months nearly ended in tragedy today.

John Clifford of Woodbine street, the husband, was hurried to Boston City Hospital suffering from the effects of gas poisoning.

Police said it was self-administered at the home of the mother of his wife, Anna, in Warren street.

GAS BURNERS TURNED ON

According to details given by police, Clifford arrived at the Warren street home near midnight to talk with his wife about returning to him and shortly after, when the wife left him for an early morning walk, turned on three burners of a gas stove and lay in the bed to die.

His young wife returned to find him and summoned Officer Albert F. Howard of the Back Bay station who was on his way home from work. With Mrs. Clifford, Howard attempted to revive Clif-

SESSION IN PRIVATE ON HURLEY ORDER

With secrecy ordered by Governor Hurley, and the press barred, police heads, captains of all divisions, the Boston Licensing Board and the State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission met at police headquarters this afternoon to fire night club charges at each other.

The governor's message of secrecy was delivered to police headquarters by a secretary, Paul C. Ryan, and the meeting was closed to all except the conferees.

Probe of Curley's Campaign Ordered; He Plans Battle

Proceedings aiming at a judicial inquest into the "Curley for Governor" campaign in 1934 have been started with issuance of a process against J. Walter Quinn of Dorchester, treasurer of the Curley campaign committee, it was disclosed today.

James J. Irwin of Boston and Medford initiated the move by invoking an obscure section of the corrupt practices law, but refused to go into details of whatever charges he has prepared.

Former Governor Curley, on the other hand, immediately retaliated by retaining Attorney Joseph A. Scolponeti and instructing him to inaugurate similar actions in the

Pontiff to Bless Easter Visitors

Vatican City, Feb. 26 (UIS)—Even if it should prove his last official act, Pope Pius insists on being carried from the Vatican on Easter Sunday to bless the thousands who always gather on that day in St. Peter's square.

The pontiff has bowed to the decree of his physician, Dr. Amanti Milani, that he must not participate in Holy Thursday or Friday services.

Longshoreman Drowns

John O'Hara, 45, of Medford street, Charlestown, a longshoreman, was drowned today when he toppled off the Wiggin Terminal pier on Terminal street, Charlestown.

Before going into the meeting, Police Commissioner Timilty and division captains had lined up their bombs against the Licensing Board and the ABC in the bolstering of police claims that these boards had blocked police attempts to curb law-violating clubs.

The police charges have precipitated a bitter three-cornered row between the police commissioner and the two boards.

Finely tuned ears on the outside of Superintendent Edward W. Fallon's office, where the session was held, failed to hear any raised voices in the first 15 minutes of the meeting, however.

Present, in addition to Timilty, Fallon and Ryan were the full memberships of both boards and included the board secretaries, the division captains and the four deputy police superintendents.

STARTLING CHARGES

For two days police had been preparing for this afternoon's session, captains on whose division liquor-licensed night clubs operate compiling lists of complaints they had made against clubs—and the overruling dispositions of the cases by the two boards.

One of the most startling of the alleged indictments was prepared by Captain Francis Tiernan of Back Bay station, and another came from the Milk street division commanded by Captain Benjamin Wall.

Meanwhile it was understood that Commissioner Timilty was seeking some method under law to bring night club violators of the liquor laws into court in an attempt to secure court convictions.

Such convictions would mean, according to Secretary of State Frederic Cook, his revocation of the club charters.

The secretary of state explained that only in the case of a court conviction can he suspend or revoke a club charter granted originally by his department.

In the report by Captain Tiernan he cited that police complaints against the Club Devlekelder, Huntington avenue, Back Bay, were made during 1936 on April 18, 19, 26, 29 and 30; May 2, 3, 5, 7, 8, 9, and 10.

The charges, his report said, were heard by the Licensing Board May 18 and the club license suspended indefinitely.

At a hearing June 12 on the club's application to lift the suspension, Captain Tiernan, Charles Sleeper, director of the nearby First Church of Christ, Scientist, and a number of Huntington avenue neighbors, objected. The suspension, however, was lifted by the board.

Again, on December 31, when a hearing was held on the club's application for the renewal of the license, Captain Tiernan objected, he reported, but the board granted a 1937 license.

MANY COMPLAINTS MADE

Regarding the Ring Social and Athletic Club, Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay, Captain Tiernan's report discloses that nine complaints were made, during 1936, on April 26, May 2 and 3 and June 9, 20 and 24.

On May 27 the license was suspended, but on June 9 the suspension was lifted. On July 2 the license was revoked by the board. After an appeal to the ABC, however, the state commission, on November 7, ordered the license restored.

Police protested, on December 21, against a 1937 license for this club, but the license was granted.

Since then there already have been two more police complaints against the club, one on January 2, the other on January 10. Both complaints were heard and filed, according to the chief's report.

Against the Monarch Club in Stuart street, according to the report, complaints were made by police on May 25 and October 20. The first complaint was heard by the Licensing Board and filed.

No notice of hearing has yet been received by police on the second complaint.

Although Captain Tiernan opposed granting of a 1937 license to this club, the board issued the license. It was revoked, however, on non-payment of the $600 fee and the club closed January 1.

Captain Tiernan's report in the case of Club Vanity Fair in Newbury street cites police complaints on May 23 and 27. Both complaints were heard—and filed by the board.

Although police disapproved granting of all licenses to this club for 1937, the board granted the license.

Already—February 21—the club had been complained of again by police since the first of the year for alleged violation of the closing time restriction. Hearing on this complaint is pending.

OTHER CLUBS NAMED

In Captain Walls' report he charges that although he opposed granting of 1937 licenses to many clubs, including the Row, Headline, Eaton and Marketmen's Club, the Licensing Board issued the licenses.

A demand that eight clubs be compelled to close at 1 a. m., when they are supposed to cease their hazy under the law, was one Hurley card which Commissioner Timilty was expected to play today at the meeting.

According to the theory attributed to Timilty, fond sales should be halted when sales of liquor are halted, thus making liquor law violations less easy of concealment.

Alleged buck-passing between various agencies having authority to halt liquor law violations in Boston's dining-dancing-drinking palaces was to be at issue at the scheduled meeting of warring factions in Commissioner Timilty's office.

Governor Hurley delegated his secretary, Paul C. Ryan, to represent him at the meeting and report.

"SHOWDOWN" MEETING

Today's "showdown" meeting was scheduled to be one almost unprecedented in the city's history.

By Commissioner Timilty's order, Superintendent of Police Edward W. Fallon was to be present together with heads of every police sub-department and captains of every police division.

Invited by Commissioner Timilty to be present were members and chairmen of the state alcoholic beverages commission and the Boston licensing board.

That both groups would be adequately represented, or have embarrassing explanations to make to Governor Hurley, was generally predicted.

POLITICAL HEADS AT STAKE

On the outcome of today's showdown State House observers said, might well depend the political heads of prominent figures in the controversy.

Reports were general that a shaking up of police and city licensing groups was imminent, in any event.

Staging of the meeting on Commissioner Timilty's own ground, with his department fully mobilized to bolster him up with documentary evidence and first-hand testimony was cited as swinging the odds further in his favor.

His stand on the closing time of night clubs was made clear before the meeting.

He rejected his previously expressed opinion that selling and serving liquor in properly conducted entertainment places should be permitted until a much later hour than 1 a. m.

This, he pointed out, would allow theater crowds a chance for leisurely relaxation after downtown shows. It would also, he said, allow persons employed during the evening opportunity to enjoy convivial surroundings after their work, without giving them encouragement to open drunkenness or clubs of questionable standing.

On the other hand, Commissioner Timilty told associates, enforcement of law regulating liquor sales must remain difficult or impossible if clubs are permitted to remain open until all hours for the ostensible purpose of serving food or accommodating purely social gatherings.

His ultimatum was reported to be simple and logical.

"Close 'em tight when their bars close or give me men enough and authority enough to keep them all from cheating."

To be threshed out today between Chairman Montague of the Boston Licensing Board and Police Commissioner Timilty was one sharply disputed question of fact.

According to Montague, police reported just two eight spots for law violations after Jan. 1.

Commissioner Timilty said eight complaints were made, involving five alleged offenders.

CITES LIST

He cited the following list:

"Club Bagdad, 684 Washington street—December 1, 18 persons observed in club at 2:55 a. m. Complained of for violation of closing hours. Case placed on file by Licensing board December 18.

"Columbus Political Club, Northampton street—Complained of by police February 6, 1937. Decision still pending. Several complaints against same club in past two years.

"Ring Social & Athletic Club, 228 Massachusetts avenue—January 2, 1937, violation of closing hours. Same complaint again on January 10. Hearing by licensing board January 28. Placed on file.

"Little Harlem Cafe, 478 Massachusetts avenue—Feb. 3, 4 and 9, 1937. Liquor served at 3:10 a. m., with 116 persons present. Hearing Feb. 22, case still pending.

"Castle Square Social and Literary Club, 151 Northampton street—Jan. 4, 1937, general conditions at club complained of. Hearing Feb. 3. Placed on file."

The two complaints which Chairman Montague said were placed in his hands were those against the Columbus Italian Political club of Roxbury and the Ring Social and Athletic club, Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay.

WITNESSES CALLED

Witnesses were called for a hearing today in the case of the first of these.

Said Montague:

"There has been no complaint from the police department against any Boston night club for violation of the liquor laws since the first of the year.

"One complaint made against the Ring Social and Athletic Club was for staying open allegedly after hours. New Year's Eve, Police said they found a dozen patrons in the club at 3 a. m. The club, as did all clubs and hotels, had permission to remain open until 4 a. m. that morning. The case was filed.

"On all cases heard by this board, we have acted on the evidence of approval or disapproval as submitted by police or other agents. We grant or reject applications for license solely on the merits of the evidence placed before us."

Montague called attention to one of Timilty's reports, that in which he claimed police had opposed issue of a license to the Marketmen's Club, South Market street, and that the license had been granted by the licensing board.

"The Marketmen's Club hasn't even got a license, he said. "This board rejected the application on the adverse report of the police department last year. But that's like a lot of others of these reports.

"There were 67 applications for club licenses for the sale of alcoholic beverages for 1937. Fifty-five of these were approved by the police department. Of the remaining 12, the following disposition was made:

"Three were rejected, and remained rejected. The Irish-American Club, the Marketmen's Club and the Elks' Home Association, have not been given licenses. Two others were rejected by this board and later granted, on appeals, by the ABC. The Eaton Club was one of those.

"Of the remaining seven disapproved by the police, the board held hearings on five and granted licenses to them, most of them with restrictions, after hearing all the evidence. One of these was later cancelled.

"The final two applications were granted without hearings and without restrictions, the board deeming insufficient evidence to have refused to issue the licenses."

Horse Room Raid Nets Worcester 3

Worcester, Feb. 26—"There are no horse betting Parlors in Worcester," police earnestly told Mayor John S. Sullivan a few days ago.

So today the police went out and raided an elaborately-fitted horse betting parlor in Bartlett street, arresting three men.

The raid followed reports that state police investigators were in the city as a result of Mayor Sullivan's order that his police department clean out horse betting establishments.

Three arrests were made in the raid. Men giving their names as Tony Santello, 27, and Anthony DiLio, 45, were charged with being present where gaming implements were found, and John Foley, 19, with selling gup and promoting a lottery.

Police said they believed Foley to be the "front man" for the real proprietor of the establishment, however.

Man, Son Found Dead From Gas

Worcester, Feb. 26 (AP)—Thomas Parah, 59, and Arthur Parah, 33, father and son, lumberjacks from Fairfield, Vermont, were found dead today from illuminating gas in a dingy bedroom in Orange street.

Three jets on a two-plate gas burner were open. Several empty liquor bottles were found.

ford while awaiting the ambulance and while en route to the hospital.

Mrs. Clifford, in tears, accompanied the unconscious husband to the hospital.

Mrs. Clifford, an attractive blonde, told the Boston Evening American that for two months of matrimony had been filled with incidents of a melodramatic nature. She said:

"We were married last November. We quarreled from the start. We could never make a go of it. He had a job when I married him. Then he lost it. He has not had a job since. We were living with his parents. I wanted a home of my own. That was the cause of much of our quarreling.

"Shortly after we were married he said to me: 'We cannot make a go of it. Let us go out of the world together.'

REFUSED ADMISSION

"Last night I was alone. He knocked at the door and said: 'Let me in.' Mother was out visiting. I did not. He broke the door in. Then he said: 'I'm going away and you are going to listen to me.'

"He got on my nerves so I went out for a walk. When I came back he was lying across the bed with all three of the burners on the gas stove open.

"This is the finish. I will never live with him again. He did this last night so I will be afraid and go back to him, but I will not."

Neither Writer, Wife Fired Fatal Shot

Party Gaiety Ends in Tragedy

'SUICIDE OUT', SAYS SHERIFF IN PROBE

Palm Springs, Cal., Feb. 26 (INS)—"The assumption that Humphrey Pearson took his own life virtually has been eliminated," Sheriff Carl Rayburn told International News Service here today.

He revealed reports of ballistic experts studying the mysterious death of Pearson, famous film writer, who was found dead in the bedroom of his fashionable home yesterday with his wife crouched hysterically beside him, begging him to wake up.

"The bullet which went through Pearson's heart was fired from a 38-caliber revolver found in the dresser drawer of a room opposite that in which the body lay," Rayburn said. "Paraffin tests have shown that neither Pearson nor his wife had fired any gun recently."

Thus today, still like the plot of a movie script, officers concentrated on seeking the answer to one question. "Who took the death gun from the bedroom and placed it in the drawer?"

In that question they believe lies the solution of the mystery.

2 SHOTS FIRED

Officers said there was "a possibility" that Pearson was killed accidentally in a struggle for the gun.

Rayburn said two shots had been fired, one went through the ceiling, the other through the man's heart.

Meanwhile detectives announced they had several new witnesses ready to testify at an inquest set for tomorrow in Beverly, Cal., where the body was taken.

Those will include according to officers:

1—The widow, Mrs. Riva King Bouman Pearson, if she is able to testify. Mrs. D. Bouman, announced she believed her husband committed suicide, is in a hospital in Riverside, still hysterical. Her attorney, Fred O. Reed, said he "doubted if she would testify."

2—Alfred Blackman, the Negro butler and the only other person known to have been in the house when the tragedy occurred. He is not being held, but will testify, officers said.

3—R. L. Allen, taxi driver, who took the Pearsons home the night of the shooting.

SECRETARY CALLED

4—Kathryn Henderson, 23, Pearson's secretary, who had dinner the night of the shooting.

5—Leonard Mitchell, 37, a cafe employee, who also was a member of the dinner party.

6—Maynard Smith, Negro chauffeur for Robert Woolsey, who visited Blackman just before the shooting.

Bouman, the only person to talk to Mrs. Pearson since she arrived in the hospital in a state of collapse, said:

"She said she had saved him on other occasions and constantly repeats, 'Oh, why, why couldn't I have been there this time?'

"My sister is not herself yet, but from what she says I imagine the shot might have been fired while she was out of the room.

"Pearson was moody and had threatened to commit suicide and I rather that my sister is under the impression that if she had been there she could have saved him.

"The paraffin tests put an entirely different complexion on the case, however. Up to that point I was under the impression that Pearson had shot himself, perhaps even while my sister was trying to take the gun from him.

"But now I don't know what to say. He had no enemies that I know.

"Blackman said that my sister asked him 'whom did you let in the house?' while they were waiting for the doctor. I paid no attention to that statement at the time, thinking she was talking wildly. Blackman said he admitted no one."

MOVE TO HOLD UP DECREE

London, Feb. 26 (USI)—Rumors circulated in London today that a step has been taken "in an unknown quarter" to prevent Mrs. Wallis Simpson's divorce decree nisi from becoming final in less than three months from the present time.

The rumors apparently were based on the fact that in the records of the King's proctor, who supervises all British divorces, a "Simpson page" is being kept from public perusal and is open to inspection only by officials and lawyers connected with the case.

This departure from usual custom suggested that an objection may have been entered either by the proctor or an intervening party against granting an absolute decree on April 28, when the interlocutory period expires.

Vienna, Feb. 26 (AP)—The duke of Kent—like many other visitors in Austria—went sightseeing with his brother today.

He and Edward strolled through the offices of the Austrian chancellery and eventually sat down for a chat with President Wilhelm Miklas.

His Death Baffles

Strip Tease 'Foreign-Born' Training Course Necessary

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

New York, Feb. 26.

If she lifts a luring eyebrow
That would charm the coldest highbrow,
If she makes an Arctic iceberg palpitate,
If there is no hint of rudeness
In her proximity to nudeness
You will know she is a Minsky graduate.

Minsky "University" is one of the few American educational institutions without a football team. It devotes itself entirely to art, and particularly to the native American art of "strip tease." Minsky's (for the sake of the uninitiated is the name of New York's leading burlesque emporium.

To investigate the immigration problems of this undoubtedly art school on Broadway, a lot of congressmen in Washington have been discussing this "strip tease" form of American art and the influx of foreign competition.

F. F. S. Degree

Professor Bobby Sanford, "dean of women" at Minsky U., a veteran who has seen more epidermis than all the skin specialists in the universe, tells you how a freshman from Arkansas or Nebraska earns her degree of F. F. S., or "full fledged strip teaser."

"As a sophomore she learns how to walk. You would be surprised how many girls don't know how to walk. Then she learns cute mannerisms—you know what I mean—like arching an eyebrow or wiggling a hip to express her individuality.

"The chief requirements for matriculation are a good figure and a good face. What's that? Oh, yes, the audience often looks at faces."

The brothers Minsky insist their "university" is conducted along the lines of strictest decorum. It is as strict as any swank boarding school. For instance, if a stage door Johnny craves a date with one of the strippers he must first fill out an application.

EVELYN MYERS

Always "Nude Year"

German Girl Here Bares Her Art

By BETTY DI PESA

Now you take strip-teasing—it isn't strictly an American art, no matter what the Minsky boys say in Washington, or elsewhere.

Blonde Evelyn Myers, German born girl who can put a lid of the ring herself into her striptearitry, insisted on this today between her appearances on the Old Howard stage.

Evelyn, whose real name she said, is Hedwiger, was born in Berlin and her mama was a Schmidt—at the Berlin Schmidts.

"Anybody who says strip-teasing is strictly American is silly," declared the stately blonde, who also does very well indeed as a fan dancer.

"The foreign girls add sauce to the art. They have pep and zest.

"If you took out the foreign-born girls, I don't know what you'd have left in the burlesque field.

"I know a lot of the best girls in burlesque who aren't strictly American."

It was suggested to Evelyn that Gypsy Rose Lee, Public Stripper No. 1, is supposed to prove the superiority of American strip-tease girls over their foreign cousins.

It All Depends

"I don't think Gypsy Rose Lee proves much," Evelyn snapped back.

"What does she prove?" Evelyn was asked.

"She proves only that she got a break. As for competition the Minskys talk about—why, I welcome competition. I invite any kind of it.

"If you're good, you're not out of a job. It's the girl that's important, not the nationality.

"Some girls strip well and others don't. That's all there is to it."

BOY HEIR Kidnapers HUNTED

'LINDY CASE' IN ARGENTINA

La Plata, Argentina, Feb. 26 (AP)—Antonio Caprioli, Argentina's "Public Enemy No. 1," and "Little Boy" Martinez, escaped today after a gun battle with police seeking the kidnapers of Eugenio Peyrera Iraola, two-year-old son of a wealthy family.

Caprioli, known as a lieutenant of the dead gangster chieftain, "Baby Face" Gorilito and Martinez, were believed implicated in the disappearance of the child near fashionable Mar Del Plata, Wednesday.

As officers searched the extensive grounds of the Peyrera Iraola estate, detectives questioned a pera, Jose Gancedo, who was implicated in the kidnaping of the victim's five-year-old brother.

Remains Mum

Police said Gancedo was unable to explain his movements and subsequent absence after the child disappeared. He refused to give a full account of his activities, they said. He also had shaved off the beard he customarily wore, detectives asserted.

Argentine newspapers referred to the kidnaping as "Argentina's Lindbergh case." One paper began a campaign for a "Lindbergh" law prescribing the death penalty for convicted abductors.

The boy is the fifth of six sons of an enormously rich cattle baron and grandson of Senator Antonio Dario Marino.

MILLINERY—BASEMENT ANNEX

AS I SEE IT

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

We rather like the democracy's method of wiping out the party deficit by giving a dinner.

It is so much more genteel than passing the hat.

Besides—

"All human history attests
That happiness for man
—the hungry sinner!—
Since Eve ate apples, much depends on dinner."

The democracy owes $497,000. That ain't hay, as we say on the campus.

Damon Runyon

On March 4, victory dinners will be held in 43 states at anywhere from $10 to $100 per copy. Similar dinners held on Jackson Day last year brought in, roughly, $345,000.

The democracy figures it ought to do much better this year. Not because the Democrats are hungrier, but because more of them now possess dinner jackets.

We have heard just one Democrat complain about the dinner. He is an officeholder under the democracy, and feels that it is his duty to attend the dinner. He does not care to subsequently find himself on the non-union list.

This Democrat tells us that he thinks the dinner is in the nature of a gastronomical shakedown. Investigation proves that he is a confirmed dyspeptic, and on a diet that will confine him to the consomme at the dinner. It is our guess that he is just a sorehead because he has to pay $10 for consomme.

We think he is fortunate that he is not a $100 man.

Anybody would be pretty hot if they had to pay $100 for consomme.

The $100 men are the big, life-sized Democrats. They will eat their dinner in Washington.

The fact that they are each paying $100 starting fee at the festive board does not necessarily mean that they have to eat $100 worth of food. The essential is that they have the $100, as evidence of good faith.

There are very few living Democrats who can eat $100 worth of food at one sitting. We told you about one of them not long ago. We told you about Mr. Tom Thorp, the turf expert, who is 100 per cent Democratic. Mr. Thorp, until recently, could eat $100 worth of entrees alone at one sitting, and then take on $50 worth of dessert. But he has gone back.

Thorp Beaten

We told you how Mr. Thorp got his come-uppance as an eater at the hands of Mr. Fatty Anderson, the horse trainer, also a Democrat, in a contest held down South. What we have not told you is that Mr. Anderson was later deprived of his newly won laurels in another contest in defense of his title.

Mr. Anderson was defeated under rather suspicious was learned that Mr. Donovan is a Republican, therefore a ringer.

Mr. Anderson promptly lodged a claim of foul with Uncle Jim Farley, who is in charge of the Democratic eaters on March 4.

Mr. Anderson is willing to eat again against Mr. Donovan on that date if Mr. Donovan will give him a reasonable handicap. Mr. Anderson thinks Mr. Donovan circumstances by a Mr. Donovan, another horse trainer.

The contest was supposed to be for Democrats only. As everybody knows, the Democrats concede that the Republicans can out-eat them on even terms. The Republicans have been hungrier longer.

This Mr. Donovan entered the contest against Mr. Anderson as a Democrat. Mr. Donovan continued eating a day and a half after Mr. Anderson succumbed. Then it should eat four of the $100 dinners, before the contest, to equalize matters.

Uncle Jim Farley is said to be considering the proposition. He realizes that an injustice has been done Mr. Anderson, but he does not like the idea of feeding any Republicans.

It is quite possible that the $100 dinner in Washington may be worth that in quality, if not quantity.

After a long decline, food—and especially restaurant food—is undoubtedly improving in these United States of America.

Under prohibition, many of our great restaurants were driven out of business. People got so they did not care about food.

12 Great Spots

Since repeal, good restaurants are returning, though we doubt that many of them are yet in a class with the great establishments of years ago.

There are not to exceed one dozen truly great restaurants in the United States today. Five of them are in New York. The other seven are scattered throughout the country. We will not name names. We might drop into one not on our list some day, and draw a Michael Finn for our omission.

Back down the years, it was said by fellows who might know that the five great restaurants of the world were Delmonico's, in New York; Voisin's, in Paris; the Adlon, in Berlin, and places in Nancy, France, and London. The names escape us. At least three of the list have vanished.

You cannot establish the personality, the atmosphere and cuisine that make a great restaurant in a few years. The old generation of gourmets starved to death under prohibition restaurant food. We have yet to thoroughly educate a new generation in the art of eating. But we must admit that democracy is doing its best.

1934 CAMPAIGN OF CURLEY IS PROBED

case of every campaigner for major political offices in the past ten years.

"TRYING TO FIND GOAT"

"They're just trying to find a goat," the former governor declared. "I had open investigation that I filed as every candidate had filed since the adoption of the corrupt practices act.

"It is clearly evident that this is a political move. In other words—the war is on. The mayoralty campaign is on.

"I have instructed Mr. Sedgwick to bring similar actions against U. S. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, against Governor Hurley, against former Governor Ely and against Mayor Mansfield. In fact, against all candidates for leading offices in the past ten years.

"Irwin is just a cloak for some Republicans who are fearful that Curley will be elected mayor of Boston again and thereby threaten their control."

OTHERS TO BE PROBED

Other committees meeting in addition to those the governor cited are understood to include those of Congressman Joseph Martin, London-for-President, Lomas-O'Brien Union Party, Charles H. Cole for Governor, ex-Senator Henry Parkman, former Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner and former District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell.

Also John W. Haigis, G. O. P. candidate for governor; Judge Felix Forte of Somerville, Republican candidate for attorney general; former Speaker Leverett Saltonstall, G. O. P. candidate for lieutenant-governor, governor's councilor and Bayard Tuckerman of Hamilton.

Irwin had previously filed a similar complaint against the committee papers of Councilor Daniel H. Coakley of Brighton.

Upon the local court ruling against the petition, Irwin then took an appeal to the supreme court. The appeal is still pending.

Sedgwick and his assistants were engaged in having photostatic copies of the campaign committee returns in the office of Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook.

The law relating to an "election inquest" is rarely used and the supreme Court, it is said, has never made a ruling upon it.

It was stated that nine municipal court justices considered Irwin's sworn complaint and that the issuance of the process was voted by the majority.

Wife Dodges Fish, Bowl; Wins Decree

Their arguments about "finances" generally ended in a row in which she was the victim, Mrs. Victoria Shears of Appleton street, Boston, testified in Norfolk probate court today, where she won an uncontested divorce.

Her husband, Frederick J. Shears, threw a glass of milk in her face, she said, when they had an argument last March, in the sixth year of their married life.

On another Sunday morning, she said, the husband began a quarrel which ended in his throwing a fish bowl at her—fish included.

"I ducked," sch explained.

One of the last straws, she said, was when her mother died and they had another argument over who would go to the funeral and who would stay home and mind the baby. At that time, Mrs. Shears said, she was hit with a plate of bacon and eggs.

Another complaining wife who won her freedom was Mrs. Mary Mulligan of Charlestown. She told the court that her husband, John, used her "as a punching bag."

They were married in 1924 and went to live in East Boston, but "it's a while he shaved and beat her, and even tried to pitch her out a window once, she said.

"And one time," she declared, "he kicked me out of bed. When I went to put my coat on, he ripped it."

REARDON BOARD END ASKED

Abolition of the State Department of Education which would result in the ousting of Commissioner James G. Reardon was asked today by Senator Arthur F. Blanchard of Cambridge, at a hearing before the legislative committee on state administration at the State House.

Blanchard's bill provides that a board of regents to be composed of seven members be created to supplant the present department. Appointment of the members would be made by the governor subject to confirmation by the senate.

James S. Norton of West Roxbury opposed the bill and charged that it was aimed at Reardon, solely. He recalled the barrage of criticism levelled against Commissioner Reardon following his appointment by former Governor Curley to succeed Payson Smith.

School Age Debate

A bill raising the compulsory school attendance age limit from 14 to 16 will be debated in the Legislature following its unanimous approval by the committee on education.

Liquor, Cruelty Charged As 4 Wives Win Divorces

Four wives were successful in dropping their husbands today in Middlesex Probate Court, but a husband who tried, had his case dismissed on investigation of the wife he charged with desertion.

Major John M. Stanley, army officer of Ayer, told her he "wouldn't quit drinking for any woman," Mrs. Ethel M. Stanley of Fitchburg testified in winning her divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

Liquor, black eyes and beatings figured in her testimony. The couple were married at Yuma, Arizona, in December, 1930, and she left him in 1934.

Drinking also constituted considerable of the testimony of Mrs. Nettie A. Fisher of South Braintree, who won a divorce from Carl F. Fisher of Natick.

TELLS OF CRUELTY

"Once he lost a job because of his drinking, she said, and during other drinking bouts he threatened her with a knife, blocked her eyes and held her head over a gas stove. The marriage, in 1904, lasted only two years.

Cruelty likewise was charged by Mrs. Mary M. Woelfel of Allenstown in obtaining a divorce from James H. Woelfel of parts unknown.

Woelfel married her in October, 1930, and between then and October, 1935, scored a number of knockdowns, she testified.

Also in the cruelty division was Mrs. Dolly L. Jackson of Boston, who divorced Edward F. Jackson of Somerville. Married in December, 1926, they separated a year ago.

BARES MONEY ROWS

Their quarrels, she testified, were mostly over money. Jackson working but seldom, and when he did work he spent the money on race bets. He left at the end of one quarrel, during which, she charged, he tore off her eyeglasses and struck her.

Eugene H. Whitney of Stoneham sought a divorce from Mrs. Bertha C. Whitney of Millbury, on a desertion charge.

Married in 1903 at Medford, Mrs. Whitney left him in April, 1926, he said, taking their three children with her.

"She thought more of somebody else than she did of me," declared the husband.

Judge Mosahan continued the case until the missing wife could be checked upon.

STEEL OFFERS WAY OUT OF NAVY TANGLE

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—The operative suggestion in the operation of the Walsh-Healey act was urged today by the Bethlehem Steel Corp.

In a formal statement the corporation, accused this administration had refused to bid on all government contracts which contained stipulations required by the act, since September 28, it was stated, U. S. Steel subsidiaries have submitted $127,000,000 worth of unsolicited contracts and have been awarded contracts for $50,000 worth of material.

Regarding bars, steel contracts, the statement said:

"Navy orders for the construction of ships comprise such a variety of products that even a sizable order would only require the partial operation each week of the major parts of the facilities of almost any plant. To introduce a different operating scale for such portion of the operations that may be involved for navy work would completely disorganize the whole production of several plants.

"If an emergency now is contemplated, an alternative does exist in a definite provision of the Walsh-Healey act, to the effect that on a written finding by the head of a government department that the inclusion in a contract of the working hours set forth would seriously impair public business, the secretary of labor shall make exceptions in specific cases. To invoke this relief would temporarily afford opportunity to study the whole situation with a view to finding a workable solution."

GAS ROUTS SIT STRIKERS IN FURIOUS BATTLE

BATTLE WITH ACID, FIRE

Until overcome by the gas attack the strikers replied with a barrage of metal nuts, tools, bottles of acid and firebrands.

The deputies' attack was well planned. Crashing through the gates of the fence surrounding the company property in a specially constructed tractor truck at 4 a. m. they opened the siege.

Sheriff Dimitrio said the strikers would be arrested individually on complaint evidence for disobeying the court order to evacuate.

An eye-witness in describing the spectacular battle said:

"A bright moon was just setting over the plant when I was amazed to see an immense tower come into view in the waning light.

"Like the famous Trojan horse of ancient Greece, the tower, mounted on a truck, moved up to plant No. 3. The tower was about 20 feet high, 5 feet square, and was covered with tar paper. There were slits in the paper near the top and at the bottom.

"As the truck pulled alongside the buildings occupied for nine days by defiant sit-down strikers, the muzzles of guns poked out from the slits and a terrific barrage of gas was directed at windows of the plant.

ARMY OF DEPUTIES

"The trucks was followed by an army of deputies, hurling hand grenades containing tear gas, and firing projectile bullets, also containing gas, which exploded as they hit.

"As the choking, blinding, nauseating fumes began clouding the battle scene, the strikers fought back.

"Anything at hand came flying out the shattered windows—pieces of brass, iron castings, tools, acid-filled bottles.

"Caught in the 'no man's land' between the sympathizers and the deputies, I dropped to the ground and watched the battle.

"About 6 o'clock, the strikers began to come out. They were in bad shape—pale and haggard —choking, blinded, sick.

"Steve Aric, 42, a chemical worker, was the first to leave. He jumped right out of the second-story window. He was gasping for breath, his eyes were bulging, his tongue hung out. He was near collapse. He could hardly speak, but managed to gasp the story of the men within the plant.

"When the gas began to take effect inside the building, he said, the men fell to the floor to escape the fumes. As the heavy gas lowered, he said, the men finally had to give up.

"Meanwhile the growing crowd of sympathizers continued to throw bricks and rocks at the deputies."

Max Padnos, counsel and spokesman for the company, declared those of the sit-downers who would not be rehired, and all would be considered ex-employes temporarily.

"Those held against their will by the plants will be rehired," he said, "We will resume operations as soon as possible."

341 Sitters Fingerprinted In Jail After Riots

San Antonio, Feb. 26 (AP)—Union organizers recruited more men today as "the strike will go on" as 341 sit-down strikers were fingerprinted in jail here after being held under guard from the Douglas Aircraft plant at Santa Monica.

"Pickets will be at all the gates," declared James Carter, the strikers attorney.

Singing and standing, the all-down group gave up its three-day possession of the plant yesterday, insisting they did so only because they had been assured their cases would be heard quickly.

Previously some had declared they were "ready to die" rather than give up.

"The strike will go on until we force Douglas to abide by the law in recognizing our union (United Automobile Workers of America) and granting our just demands for union recognition, wage and hour changes," Carter said.

Asserting he had not been notified of any demands, Donald W. Douglas president of the world's largest aircraft plant, announced willingness to meet with "any legitimate labor group."

Riders Win In Trolley 'Sit-Down'

Chicago, Feb. 26 (U.S.—What next in sit-down strikes?

Chicago now records the latest variety. Passengers on one of the luxurious new stream - lined street cars staged a sit-down strike when ordered to transfer to one of the ordinary type cars.

The voice of an elderly and indignant woman rose in protest:

"Ladies and gentlemen, don't get off. Stay right where you are. It's the law. They can't force us to transfer."

Other passengers took up the cry. Conductor and motorman held a brief council of war, then surrendered. The car continued on its journey.

150 Strikers Picket Electric Boat Works

Groton, Ct., Feb. 26 (UNS) — After suffering two setbacks in their fight for recognition, about 40 strikers paraded in front of the Electric Boat works here today as the day force entered. Observers estimated about 1000 entered the plant. There was no disturbance other than occasional booing as the workmen arrived.

An official of the company stated the plant operated yesterday with 82 per cent of the maximum force. Union leaders however disputed this claim and cited the admission of the company that the welding department was the hardest hit. Workers, the strikers claim, are key workmen and their absence soon will tie up production.

Shortly after Governor Wilbur L. Cross emphatically declared that he was opposed to sit-down strikers, the strikers received another blow when O. Pomeroy Robinson, local manager, refused to grant concessions to a union committee, headed by John Greene of New York, international president.

New Dispute Shuts Body, Chevrolet Plants

Janesville, Wis., Feb. 26 (AP)—A dispute developing over friction between union and nonunion employes caused the Fisher Body factory and the Chevrolet Automobile Assembling plant today. Approximately 2,000 men were thrown out of work.

Refusal of 60 men on the Fisher Body west cushion line to go to work today until one of their number, William Baird, was reinstated made it impossible to continue production.

Production ceased at the Chevrolet plant soon after. The latter was dependent upon the Fisher works for its body supply.

'Suicide Strikers' Lose; Pay Still $3.60 a Week

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 26 (UP)—Tortures of thirst and hunger and the excruciating struggle for life today conquered the rebellious Textile strikers of 300 gold mines self-entombed for three days in the Pecs coal region, it was learned here.

Bitterly disappointed, weak and half-blind, the last of the miners staggered to the surface, handing in the day's daylight into the arms of their waiting wives.

They emerged in groups of 12 to face the cold steel of hundreds of helmeted soldiers and the unflinching bayonets of the police and mines. The bosses will pressure the instigators, and the remainder will have to return to work at the old wages of $3.60 a week or Monday.

A group of young miners, heartening away, held at bay the majority who wanted to abandon the strike yesterday, when quivering began.

The dank smell of water rising in the shaft, 200 feet below, broke their savage hunger undermined the miners' resistance, but the real torment was thirst. Then the iron will of the younger men was burning thirst.

Anzac Miners Sit-In; Oppose New Machinery

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 26 (AP)—Thirty miners armed with dynamite, barricaded themselves in the North Waratah colliery near Newcastle today in a step to strike protesting introducing of coal-cutting machinery.

The men entrenched behind an electrified barricade and declared they would hold the mine until an agreement barring the machinery was made.

NEW LOWELL BANK HEAD

Lowell, Feb. 26—In a "recommended" shift of personnel following investigation by Bank Commissioner William P. Hustead, Jr., Frank A. Green today became treasurer of the Lowell institution for Savings.

Meanwhile, the resignations of Charles A. Criswell, treasurer, Harlan D. Criswell, assistant treasurer, and Miss A. Clough, of the real estate department, were accepted by the trustees of the bank.

Commissioner Hustead stressed in an announcement that the finances of the institution are sound, despite the recent abnormal withdrawals.

Rev. Herrick Heads Church Federation

Announced today as new president of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches was Reverend Everett C. Herrick, head of Andover-Newton Theological Seminary.

He was elected at the Federation's annual dinner, held in Old South church, Copley square with more than 200 members present.

Party Types

Elyria, O., Feb. 26 (AP)—Ever since January 1 the two Democrats and one Republican on the board of county commissioners had wrangled over allotting orders for three typewriters.

But everything is all right now. One Republican and two Democratic dealers received the orders.

REBELS SLAY BATTALION AT MADRID

By Associated Press

Annihilation of an entire battalion of Madrid militiamen in sergeant officers declared today wiped out a government offensive on the western border of the city that near the Segovia Bridge.

Russia and Portugal resumed from the projected six-power patrol intended, starting March 6, to prevent men and munitions from reaching the Spanish contestants. Their action, apparently by agreement, left only France, Great Britain, Italy and Germany to enforce the international non-intervention agreement.

Informed sources said the withdrawals were not expected to affect the patrol plan. Portugal reserved the right to monitor the naval blockade if Russia does.

FIGHT IN SEWERS

The hand-to-hand struggle for Oviedo, "the Alcazar of the Asturias" spread into the ancient sewers of the devastated city, advices from Barcelona via the French-Spanish frontier reported.

The besieged insurgent garrison, blasted out of its fortifications in the above ground, was said to have entrenched itself in the sewers and to have found supplies from a gaping hole in the north wall battle, which has lasted nearly a week.

SEIZE DUTCH SHIP

The British steamer Hindmoor Castle, last to leave Bilbao, was seized in by a floating mine the straits yesterday off Cape De Creus, docked with 600 passengers at Port Vendres, France.

General Gonzalo Quiepo De Llano, broadcast from Seville, Spain, that an insurgent gunboat damaged the Dutch steamer Hamboy with shell fire before capturing it and seizing 1200 tons of war materials destine for Madrid government troops.

White Flags Flutter From Madrid Houses

London, Feb. 26 (AP)—White flags fluttering from numerous houses in Madrid were visible to the naked eye from insurgent lines today, said a Reuters message from Paris, but the rebels moved with utmost caution, fearing a trap.

OFFICER IN GUN BATTLE DEAD

St. Louis, Feb. 26 (AP)—Detective-Sergeant John Thomas Sullivan died today of bullet wounds suffered in a gun battle in which two escaped Michigan convicts were killed yesterday.

Sullivan, shot five times, was 45 and had been a policeman for nearly 18 years.

The dead bandits, linked with a series of holdups in the St. Louis area Wednesday night, were identified by fingerprints as Ray Akers, 19, and Alvin Mills, 20, who with Edward Scott, escaped from the Michigan State Prison at Jackson last Friday.

Hospital Named For Will Rogers

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—The former National Vaudeville Artists sanatorium at Saranac Lake, became today a memorial to Will Rogers, famed humorist, with the transfer of its deed to the Will Rogers Memorial Commission.

The deed, gift of the motion picture industry and of the late sage, was presented in the sanatorium by Will H. Hays, head of the motion picture producers and distributors of America.

The sanatorium, to be known as the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital, is for the care of sick actors.

Bomb Routs Meeting

Detroit, Feb. 26 (AP)—While new strikeouts and lockouts sent the number of strike idle to nearly 7000 in small of plants, the second mysterious tear gas attack on the United Automobile Workers Union in six days was reported to police today.

A gas bomb was thrown into a union meeting last night, forcing [illegible] men hurriedly rushing there to the streets. Sunday night a meeting of several thousand persons in the Briggs fair grounds coliseum turned into a riot when tear gas was mysteriously released in the hall. Two union automobiles also have been destroyed in the past three weeks.

Garbo Consents At Last to New Cameraman

(Copyright, 1937, by International News Service)

Hollywood, Feb. 26—Greta Garbo has consented to be photographed by a different cameraman.

This wouldn't mean much in the case of most Hollywood stars, but for 11 years, ever since she came to this country, the Swedish actress has refused to go before the camera unless William Daniels stood behind it. And as Norma Shearer and other stars also preferred Daniels, this often meant juggling extensive picture schedules.

With an amiableness surprising to her co-workers, Miss Garbo has agreed to entrust Karl Freund with the task of picturing her "Madame Walewska" next week.

Pets, Petted

ROSOFF FREED IN NEW JERSEY DEATH CASE

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Supreme Court Justice Aron J. Levy today consented to the withdrawal of an application of Bergen County, N. J., authorities for an order directing Samuel Rosoff, wealthy subway contractor, to appear in New Jersey for an examination in connection with the slaying of Norman Redwood, union leader.

Justice Levy, at the same time, took occasion to rebuke the Bergen County authorities for the manner in which they proceeded in endeavoring to have Rosoff appear in New Jersey for questioning.

Technically Justice Levy sustained a writ of habeas corpus sued for by Rosoff's attorneys.

R. I. BOY HELD AS ALIEN

After having taken young Lucien Albert Fluette, a federal prisoner, from Woonsocket, R. I., to Utica, N. Y., United States Marshal John J. Murphy was doing his best today to win freedom for the accused man.

On its way to the United States attorney for the district of northern New York was a letter from Murphy saying that Fluette, charged with evading immigration regulations, is a victim of circumstance.

Murphy said it appeared Fluette came to Rhode Island from Canada as a child of ten with parents who subsequently were granted United States citizenship.

Thinking he was a citizen, too, Fluette recently revisited Canada, then was denied readmission to the United States. He stole in, anyway, and was arrested.

Marshal Murphy's letter suggested that, if Fluette were released, his citizenship difficulties could be straightened out.

Zimmerman Urges Court Referendum

By CARLE C. ZIMMERMAN
Associate Professor of Sociology, Harvard University
(Written especially for the Boston Evening American)

Acts of all kinds, including changing the Supreme Court, are wise or unwise according to the circumstances surrounding them.

The American people are now in a frightful mental situation. We have participated in a World War, had a tremendous inflation and a great depression. Like a man who has had three dreadful spells of sickness, we are in no shape to make judgments on important questions during this convalescent period.

CARLE C. ZIMMERMAN

A study of history shows that people, particularly in abnormal periods such as this, do things which they later regret. Actions of these types are more often true in governments in which the executive, the legislative and the judicial power are concentrated in the hands of one agency than in divided governments.

AMERICAN SYSTEM

In order to meet this imperfection of concentrated government, thinkers have for a long time sought a mixed system of government, one with a BALANCE OF POWER.

Our forefathers who established the American system of government had this in mind. They tried to get a form of government which would represent both the immediate and the long-time interests of the people. Thus they provided for a lower House of Congress which can change its membership every two years, an Executive which can be changed every four years, a Senate which can completely change its membership in six years and a Judiciary which ordinarily has a complete turnover in a much longer time.

CENTER OF ARGUMENT

They hoped by such a system as this to have a government in which about half of the power would be immediately responsive to the momentary desires of the people and the other half would take a long-time point of view regarding the permanent necessities of the people.

It seems to me that the central point in this argument over the courts is whether or not we wish, particularly at this time, to abandon this balance of power between the immediate attitudes of the people concerning the functions of the government and their long-time attitudes. This is very important when we think of the possibilities of who may come into control of the governmental machine ten years from now.

I have the greatest of respect for our present governmental officials. However, the history of government has been such that we can have no guarantee that a good set of officials will be followed by men of equally good intentions or capacity. In the Roman empire good emperors were often followed by bad ones and in English history good kings were often succeeded by those of lesser capacity. I even observe that in American history during the 19th century the quality of the heads of our government changed considerably. Consequently I feel that we should think twice before abriding our balanced system of government.

Let us ask ourselves this question:

Who will rule America after 1940?

URGES REFERENDUM

Men often times create things which destroy them. One of the functions of wise leadership is to avoid this difficulty. America has been in an abnormal frame of mind for some years. Once we take this action we cannot turn backwards.

A referendum on the matter as would be brought about by a constitutional amendment would give us time to think more carefully.

The American government was in active consideration from 1775 to 1789. Its principles were not well agreed upon until after the Civil War. Surely, we should not abandon its most fundamental working principle after only a few weeks discussion in Congress.

The advocates of changing the Supreme Court offer as an argument that we can thereby achieve things which we could not do otherwise. Does this mean the National Recovery Act? If so, let us remember that the NRA was very unpopular when it was declared unconstitutional. No violent objections were offered at that time to the death of that act.

If it means further restricted agricultural production, further limits on our exports and higher cost of living, the accompaniments of agricultural restriction, then we surely are foolish if we do it either by a packed court or an amended constitution.

Snow Hides Trail In Torso Search

Cleveland, Feb. 26 (US)—A sudden snow squall obliterated the faint trail detectives were following in their search for missing parts of the body of Cleveland's eighth torso murder victim.

A trail, apparently of blood stains, led to a point only a short distance from the spot a woman's dismembered body was found on Lake Erie's beach last Tuesday.

The detectives covered every foot of the shore, prodding small piles of driftwood and sounding out shallows in a renewed hunt for the head, arms and legs of the woman.

Discovery of the head appeared to be the only chance of identifying the woman who appeared to be about 25 years old and to weigh between 105 and 120 pounds.

Find Woman's Garb At Haverhill Pond

Haverhill, Feb. 26—Three pieces of women's clothing were found today on a shore of Whittier's pond, off the Amesbury road, and police began an investigation to determine if a suicide had taken place.

Gaston Bradley, 16, of Atwood road, made the find. The three garments were scattered about, he said.

Jewish Doctor Slain

Beisan, Palestine, Feb. 26 (AP)—Dr. Joseph Lehr, one of the few Jews to remain here since the outbreak of racial hostilities, was shot and killed today by three Arabs, who escaped.

NEW BROOKLINE OFFICER QUIZ BY DEWING

Cancelling routine duties at Brockton with the grand jury today, District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing of Norfolk county was closeted with a Brookline police officer in connection with the Brookline graft probe.

Patrolman George Doring was called to the district attorney's office as the second officer Dewing has interviewed since the graft investigation was reopened yesterday.

Questioned first was Lieutenant James F. Tourn, successor to Sergeant Henry D. MacNeil, former head of the Brookline vice squad and under indictment, with two Brookline policemen, in connection with the probe.

CANCELS ENGAGEMENT

The fact that Dewing had announced that he must be in Brockton by 9:30 a. m. and then cancelled business there in favor of the probe, led to considerable speculation around Dedham courthouse.

While the district attorney refused to divulge any information regarding the new probe, it was learned from a close source today that it is also pointed in connection a woman who operated a questionable house in Brookline for nearly two months.

This woman, it is charged, was given an "O. K." into Brookline by a town official under which she have paid the official $175, the first month, to be divided among certain persons as protection.

Midway in the second month, however, she is said to have been summoned to Police Chief Alfred Rutherford's office and ordered "to get out of town."

ORDER REPEATED, REPORT

When she protested that she had been "O. K'd" into the town, the police chief repeated this order, it is said.

Also from a close source today came information that the Brookline police shake-up following the first grand jury session in the probe was not primarily in the interests of department morale, but because officers long on "nuts and bolts" knowledge of Brookline districts were revealing "inside information" regarding the graft probe.

Possibility that the attorney-general's department may step into the probe shortly, under Dewing's and direction, was seen today at the State House.

Reports of such action would be seriously considered by Attorney General Paul A. Dever followed a recent appeal by Dewing that he take personal hand in the situation.

The appeal was made in a telegram sent by Dewing to Mayor Prendergast of Brookline.

Prendergast is affiliated with a Brookline group seeking legal means of preventing Judge Parker from serving in the two different to both judicial and professional capacities.

The Norfolk County grand jury, in its report on Brookline conditions, commented adversely on Parker's dual role as judge and counsel.

The appeal of Attorney Prendergast to the governor today came immediately after reopening of District Attorney Dewing's own probe.

By the district attorney's order today, state detectives were running down new clues, offered by Attorney George Stanley Harvey.

As quoted by Police Sergt. McNeil, Harvey has "positive and certain criminality implicating at least two other persons in Brookline" alleged "gambling racket."

Should Attorney Harvey's claims be substantiated, District Attorney Dewing would "proceed to the grand jury, he said.

His renewed probe, pushed indefinitely today, was causing a general stir in Brookline, where reports were current that sensational revelations impended.

These revelations were said to concern alleged operations of number pool and horse race betting rings.

They might even involve a recent, unsolved murder, it was rumored.

"Palmer" Method In Pools Charged

Latest wrinkle in number pool circles—in order to avoid police securing written slips for evidence—is to have agents write the combination bet on the palm of the hand, police claimed today.

Sergeant Charles Hunter arrested Austin Devaney of Bromley street, Roxbury, as a number pool agent using this "palmer method."

The sergeant said that he and two fellow-officers caught Devaney in the act of telephoning the bet to pool headquarters.

TEXTILE NRA CONTROL PLAN APPROVED

Washington, Feb. 26 (INS)—The administration has approved separate legislation for control of the far-flung textile industry in line with the general plan to restore basic principles of National Recovery Administration, it was disclosed today.

Both the budget bureau, which passes on legislation to determine whether it conflicts with the President's financial policy, and Secretary of Labor Perkins have approved objectives of a textile control bill framed by a House labor subcommittee headed by Rep. Kent Keller (D.), of Illinois.

The administration's plan, it was said, contemplates separate legislation only for the bituminous coal and textile industries, on the ground that their problems are more complex than those of industry generally. The House ways and means committee, acting at the request of President Roosevelt, already has reported a revised Vinson-Guffey bill regulating the soft coal industry.

Armed with a friendly report from both the budget bureau and the labor department, Chairman Keller of the labor subcommittee announced that work of revising the present textile bill will be carried on speedily.

SEEK TO HALT STOCK SALE

Charging that the stock of the Fiscus Mining Company of Vancouver was sold "by means of untrue statements," James J. Caffrey, New England administrator for the Securities and Exchange Commission, today filed a bill in equity seeking a preliminary injunction against W. A. Nash and Company, State street stock brokers.

Filed in United States District Court, the bill alleges the stock was sold through the mails in violation of the Securities and Exchange Act in such a way that it operated as a fraud and deceit upon purchasers.

The bill specifically requests that the defendant be restrained from selling the stock and a hearing has been set by Judge Elisha H. Brewster for March 8 at 2 p. m.

Jewish Fund Unit Elects Officers

Announcement was made today of the election of Charles S. Cohen of Boston, as chairman of the businessmen's council of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies at the group's sixth annual meeting held at the Hotel Bradford.

Other officers elected were Samuel L. Ginsburg, associate chairman; Edward E. Cohen, treasurer, and Howard Rubin, secretary.

Britain Counts U. S. Coronation Dollars

London, Feb. 26 (AP)—British tradesmen started figuring their profits on paper today as it became apparent Hollywood movie stars would lead the invasion of Americans with money to spend for the coronation of King George VI.

Although there is no way of estimating the number of American dollars that will flow into the coffers of merchants, hotel owners and restaurateurs, they were expected to form a large part of the revenue that will be one measure of the success of the May festivities.

Numbers of celebrities and persons of wealth who will spend freely for first class accommodations already have made reservations. Charlie Chaplin, British-born comedian, was reported to have leased a house in Mayfair for the entire coronation season.

Another example of the way American money is flowing into London was seen in lavish expenditures for professional seats.

One California shipping magnate was said to have spent almost $1000 for a block of seats. He paid $250 each for two of them, $150 each for two more, and $75 each for another pair.

The last two were reserved for his butler and maid.

Belgian Fascist Leader Jailed

Ghent, Belgium, Feb. 26 (US)—Leon Degrelle, Belgium's youthful Fascist leader, spent several hours in the city jail here after he precipitated a row by heckling Premier Paul Van Zeeland at a public meeting.

Degrelle, 36-year-old chieftain of the Fascist Rexist party, was arrested and taken to the police station with several of his lieutenants. They were released later.

NICHOLS OPENS MAYOR FIGHT

Former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols today began active campaigning for election to a second term as chief executive of the city. Nichols held that office from 1926 to 1929 and in 1933 was defeated by a margin of only 1700 votes when he sought a second term.

Nichols campaign workers today began distribution of thousands of pledge cards in all sections of the city and opened headquarters at 18 Tremont street.

District Attorney William J. Foley will shortly make formal announcement of his candidacy for mayor, it was reported at City Hall today. Many of his friends are of the opinion that he will take that action on St. Patrick's Day.

Former Governor James M. Curley and Mrs. Curley are to meet tomorrow at the Ruby room, Hotel Touraine, with 400 women members of his mayoralty committee.

Graham Paige Pay Raise Announced

Detroit, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Graham Paige Motors Corporation announced today a blanket wage increase of five cents an hour for workers employed on an hourly rate, effective March 1. Approximately 250 employes will be affected.

A varied wage increase, averaging about five cents an hour, was granted December 1.

Woman Dead 2 Years 'to Live Again in Cult'

Monticello, Utah, Feb. 26 (AP)—Mrs. Edith Peshak died two years ago this month and Mrs. Marie M. Ogden, leader of a strange, little known, religious colony, predicted today she "presently will be restored to life."

"We do not know the exact time to expect the results we are so eager for, but we are nearing the time," said Mrs. Ogden, who is in her early fifties.

"We not only expect Mrs. Peshak to be restored to us in her physical life; we expect her to be recognized by others."

For months after Mrs. Peshak died at the "Home of Truth," the colony Mrs. Ogden, former Newark, N. J., clubwoman, established in the wild country north of Monticello, the curious flocked to the scene.

They were drawn by stories of daily gatherings around the body, kept on a table in one of the houses, and of mystic rites at dawn.

Theirs believe in simple living, "the spiritualization of the body while in life," and "a return in flesh to this earth in another life."

Eventually the authorities came for the law says a body may not be kept unburied. But they went away without interfering. A doctor from nearby Monb said he found Mrs. Peshak's body in a "perfect state" of preservation.

Then one day, word got around the body had disappeared. Scoffers said the cultists had buried their dead. The colonists, who now number 12, remained silent until Mrs. Ogden spoke today.

ILLNESS HALTS DR. COTE TRIAL

Illness of Judge John M. Gibbs today postponed until Monday the trial in Suffolk court of Miss Irene Bostwick, alias Dr. Rene Cote, and Walter S. Simonson, both charged with deriving support from women.

Judge Gibbs was confined to his home with the grippe, it was stated as the trial was about to resume.

Miss Italia "Roxie" Delli Rocci is expected to take the stand again on Monday for the third time to face a continued cross-examination at the hands of Simonson, acting as his own counsel. The state charges that Simonson and Dr. Cote derived support from Miss Rocco.

2 Roxbury Girls Find Man's Body

Dead since yesterday, the body of Robert Adler, 35, was found today on a couch in an apartment in West Cottage street, Roxbury.

The body was discovered by two Roxbury girls, Elsie Clark, 13, and Mildred Wilkinson, 11, both of Gouldville street, who called to sell magazines and found the door partly open. Dr. Joseph Lazaron, police physician, said death was due to natural causes.

"Why I Choose CAMELS"

"THE SMART new touch in entertaining is to have Camels on the table from hors d'oeuvres to dessert," says Miss Dorothy Malone, food editor.

"MARK ME DOWN as a man who appreciates how mild and fine-tasting Camels are," says all-events bowling champion, Johnny Murphy.

"I WANT A CIGARETTE that doesn't jangle my nerves," says master welder Dan Rafferty. "And Camels don't. They go fine with meals too."

THE CHAMPION GIRL bronco-buster and attractive rodeo star, Rose Davis, says: "Camels always appeal to my taste, but I think the Camels I smoke with my meals and after are the most enjoyable of all."

"CAMELS ARE a wonderful help in keeping me pepped up," this vivacious T.W.A. hostess, Betty Steffen, says. "In my work I see many famous people. And I've been struck by the fact that most of them smoke Camels."

"Because healthy nerves and good digestion are my best aces in the hole," says smiling Jimmie Foxx—hard-hitting first baseman of the Boston Red Sox

"I STICK by Camels and Camels stick by me," says Jimmie. "Camels set me right. They never get on my nerves or tire my taste. I smoke Camels for their refreshing 'lift,' and for the aid they give my digestion. My appetite leans to plenty of good solid chow. Camels go a long way in helping me feel my food agrees with me."

Enjoy Camel's costlier tobaccos the whole day through. At mealtimes Camels are an aid to digestion—speeding up the flow of digestive fluids—increasing alkalinity—bringing a sense of well-being. And when you're tired, get an invigorating "lift" in energy with a Camel. Steady smokers prefer Camels. They are so mild!

GOING DOWN the compression locks. In the words of Sidney S. Wetzel, tunnel engineer: "My work involves constant danger. That's why I always smoke Camels. Camels don't frazzle my nerves—ever. Between shifts I smoke plenty of Camels."

THE LIGHTNING SWORD PLAY of Bela de Tassan, fencing instructor, is often faster than the eye. He says: "Believe me, I need every ounce of energy when fencing. So I welcome the invigorating 'lift' in energy that I get with a Camel."

NATIONAL OUTBOARD MOTORBOAT CHAMPION, Fred Jacoby, Jr., faces punishing strain in every race. "My condition is just as important as the 'tuning-up' of the engine. That's why Camel is my cigarette," says Fred.

"I'M A SECRETARY," says Jocelyn Lykby, "and I often eat in a hurry. I smoke Camels—nothing else. When I enjoy Camels with my food and after I feel on top of the world. I'd walk a mile for a Camel."

CHIEF ENGINEER George J. Buckingham stows up with Camels before clearing port. "I wouldn't want to be on the high seas without my Camels," he says. "It's a strain keeping tons of high powered machinery under control. Camels help ease the tension."

TUNE IN—Hear "Jack Oakie's College"—a full-hour gala show with irrepressible Jack Oakie in person! Benny Goodman's "Swing" Band! Hollywood comedians and singing stars! ANN MARSTERS IN THE MOVIES

Bruises Are Part Of Day's Labor

By ANN MARSTERS

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 26—Production marches on. I now give you Martha Raye, Shirley Ross, Bing Crosby and Bob Burns all doing a scene together in "Waikiki Wedding."

It is the first time since I began working in this picture that I have seen anything resembling a white girl on the set. But that isn't surprising, because Martha and Shirley are the only white girls in the whole picture. The rest of us are Caledonia girls.

An Extra Girl Watches the Stars at Work

AN INTERLUDE—Ann Marsters (seated on the floor) gets the "low down" on Hawaiian life during scenes from one of the latest pictures with Boston's superb actress, to an extra girl on the Paramount lot, Astoria, "Waikiki Wedding."

Feed the Piggy

Dizzy Foursome

Real Troupers

Oh, That Face

What happens on a movie set when food is part of the "props" and hungry extras eat the food? Director Tuttle solved the problem and how he did it will be told in TOMORROW'S Boston Evening American, in the 13th article of the series, "ANN MARSTERS IN THE MOVIES."

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

THE WORLD'S WORST ACTOR has made his Boston debut, and for a very small fee you can see him on display at Keith's Boston Theatre . . . Baffled people, bewildered and [illegible] you will find [illegible] blocking the way. [illegible] performances as [illegible] Ray Hutton and Ina May [illegible] Buck and Bubbles [illegible] you haven't [illegible] see at the head of the [illegible] in and day out for [illegible] miss them. [illegible] as an actor . . . Buck [illegible] ers . . . And then [illegible] . . . and those B. and B. [illegible] exclamation points . . . What a show!

GEORGE HOLLAND

Walter Winchell sends best wishes in fifty of the most [illegible] ever communicated from one actor to another . . . Modesty forbids printing the telegram, although we are led to believe that it will be permanently displayed in front of a certain theatre no later than tomorrow . . . Mark Hellinger was concise and double-meaning. "Congratulations, Mark wired . . . "I just met a fellow who caught your act and he says he enjoyed it very much." . . . George M. Cohan is much more emotional . . . and it's that we thank a long friendship that means as much as it does an everlasting one . . . Good luck, George. I wish I could be there to cheer you in; but you will more than likely hear me from the balance stop Go to it kid" . . .

Would it be all right to follow with quotes?

An anonymous wire reads as follows: "Congratulations and best wishes from Jack Benny . . . Unsigned" . . . "Best wishes from an old actor to a new one" . . . Lionel Barrymore. If they were all like him) . . . "May your appearance later in a new star" . . . Joan Crawford (Joan has a swell sense of humor) . . . "If you are as good an actor as you are a writer you will pack them in . . . Regards" . . . Guy Kibbee . . . (Editorial note: Mr. Kibbee is playing the lead in "Don't Tell the Wife" and doesn't know way out there in Hollywood that the Ritz Brothers, Ina Ray Hutton and Buck and Bubbles are also on the record breaking bill . . . William Powell: "Here's hoping you stop the show" . . . Robert Montgomery: "If your act is as good as your column you belong in pictures." (Bob can spoof with the best of them) . . . "When a newspaper man goes into show business that is news stop . . . You know how to do it for years . . . Now I want to know how to do an actor yourself? . . . But wait, I'll tell you. Good luck and sincere regards from Dick Powell" . . . Jean Harlow, Bette Davis, Edward G. Robinson, Kay Francis, George Brent, Hugh Herbert, Pat O'Brien, Louis B. Mayer, Joe Kaufman, Paul Muni, Olivia de Havilland to name a few Warner Brothers Studio." There's no answer to a wire like that

"Don't [illegible] Ray Hutton and her [illegible]

From Claudette Colbert: "[illegible] How does [illegible] Claudette Colbert. Mr. [illegible] get this message [illegible] best wishes for [illegible]

Personal to [illegible] orchestra leader [illegible] the Ritz Brothers with a [illegible] it isn't enough . . . And [illegible] conditions being what they [illegible] is one from the manager [illegible] ever been to a manager either, and I'll bet a dollar to a doughnut that will admit that . . . The [illegible] Understand you and the [illegible] blocking traffic in Washington street . . . The Metropolitan and Orpheum are all in a spot . . . [illegible] four first Sunday columns [illegible]

When the Ritz Brothers read that wire they really came to bat for a pal in a fix . . . "George," said they, "you've carried us now for four shows, and we're appreciative . . . We'll write the Sunday column for you."

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 26—What did movie stars used to be—before they were movie stars? Many of them were fairly well started in various trades and professions before they came to Hollywood.

Charlie Chaplin was a comedian on the vaudeville circuit.

Marlene Dietrich was a cabaret singer.

Herbert Marshall was a telephone clerk and so was Jack Oakie.

Clark Gable used to sell waist lines for a Portland, Ore., newspaper.

Eugene Pallette and Lyda Desmond started out in the pictures.

Charlie Ruggles was a clown.

Frank Fenton, whose name you've heard in Chamberlain Walker's broadcasts, is a publicist.

Gary Cooper was a newspaper cartoonist.

Bela Lugosi and Gregory Peck started out as lawyers.

Adolphe Menjou and Ray Teple are said to be natural comedians.

Neil Kent Taylor was a window trimmer.

Despite the Glamour, 'The Sheriff' Is Known All Too Well Here

A quickie producer called in his production manager and told him that the studio policy was being changed.

"From now on," he said "we're making nothing but Westerns."

"Westerns?" asked the assistant, puzzled.

"Yes," said the producer. "I figure that as long as we're installs one pump aboard of the sheriff we might as well use him in our pictures."

With Mary Astor testifying for and against him, and divorcing the lad married Manuel Del Campo, Mary's current ex-husband Dr. Franklin Thorpe, made a quiet getaway from Hollywood with his pal and agent, Clark Gable. They went to a Dublin, Ireland, racing stable's station wagon.

Film Projector Brings New Light To 'Boston After Dark'

Note to Geo. Howard "Boston After Dark" Critic—Boston American

Dear George:

I hear that you're making a personal appearance at the Keith-Boston theater, along with the Ritz Brothers and Ina Ray Hutton and your own play, "Don't Tell the Wife."

Well, at last an author and columnist is really being appreciated, and I know you're going to make it a big week. (You seem to have enough friends, anyway, to fill a movie house ten times over.)

Next to seeing oneself in the movies, the oddest experience must be to see one's own play turned into a movie. Or haven't you seen it yet? I know authors are terribly sensitive, but I hear Hollywood has done right by you, and that it's a classy picture.

Good luck to you and your stage career.

Jeanette MacDonald's Sister Wins Contract 'On Her Own'

Jeanette MacDonald's sister, who is singing in Mitzi Pike, has won an M. G. M. contract. She won a screen test in New York, entirely on her own. Until then, I gather, she had been afraid to let it be known that she was related to Jeanette. Now she's reported as very proud of the relationship.

Ina Ray Hutton, famous woman band leader, and Marjorie McBride, Boston Evening American columnist, are saying. Mr. Holland is not a singer, really. Not even theoretically. While he is appearing on the stage of the RKO Boston this week with the Ritz brothers, he really doesn't sing. So it's all right for you to attend.

LEADERS TALK ON 'ECONOMY'

The second annual Harvard-Yale-Princeton conference on public affairs opened today with students probing government officials on hand to lend their views.

The conference, which is a feature because one of the few in the country to offer an opportunity for open discussion, is the first step in bringing a first-hand viewpoint on student problems to the attention of the conference, but now becomes an annual affair.

145 Attend

With 145 persons in attendance, 33 of whom are guests from the press and guest speakers, 31 of whom are instructors at the various schools and the rest of the group made up of students, the first session of the conference took place this afternoon.

The meeting, which was held in the Ballroom of the Statler, was opened by Professor Harold J. Laski, a member of the British Labor party, who spoke on the topic for discussion, which was "Economic Planning."

At the start, luncheon for the Harvard, Yale and Princeton delegates of the Massachusetts Legislature, and a smoker at the Harvard Club, were on the program.

Hold Banquet

Today, a three hour session in the afternoon, the final session in the evening, and the banquet at the Harvard Club, will be held.

EXIT LAUGHINGLY—Still gay, goofy and theatrical, Max Baer has just exchanged insults with the New York Boxing Commission and gone off in a huff. He said he resented being termed a "bum" and a "quitter" by the boxing body, and the Commission said he couldn't fight in New York until he showed a "proper penitence," if you can digest such twaddle.

Gomez Still Refuses Yanks' Offer

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Col Jacob Ruppert, New York Yankee owner and Pitcher Vernon (Lefty) Gomez today held their third unsuccessful salary conference.

Col Ruppert said after the meeting he had refused to raise his offer of $15,000 Gomez, who asked for $18,000 the last time the two conferred, agreed to settle for $16,000 today, Ruppert said.

"Gomez said he'd think it over," the Colonel remarked. "I told him to make up his mind. I haven't heard from any of the other holdouts."

Good news at last has arrived for the winter sports fans who had practically given up the ghost after the April shower that arrived on the morning of February 22. Before the day was over the shower decided to pull a fast one on the boys and girls and blanket northern New England with from four to twelve inches of wet snow that has been covered by several shorter stops as late as the week with a nice powder surface that should make an excellent close this weekend.

JOE DiMAGGIO ALL STAR "GOAT" | YET CAME NEAR WINNING GAME

Hello, Everybody. This is Fred Hoey speaking:

All the drama of the last all-star game played here at National League Field last season revolved around baseball's outstanding recruit, Joe DiMaggio, young Italian from San Francisco.

To this very day we have heard intense arguments about Joe's outfield play for the American League team. DiMaggio, at the time, was a glittering idol. It was a high honor for him to be chosen in his first year of major league ball to play with the game's greatest players. And in this setting DiMaggio had one of those days in which every important play was his and every one went wrong.

MISSED BEING HERO BY INCHES

Even after this great effort the freshman star did not get a firm grasp of the ball. It was a peculiar drive to handle anyway. As the ball neared DiMaggio it took a sudden dip. As a rule we always stand alone with official scorers, but it seemed to us that Gabby was entitled to a hit on the drive.

DiMaggio had missed by less than a foot the glory of having won the N. Y. Star game.

Here is one fan who won't bear down too hard on this one thing, but the greatest rookie player we ever saw. As I see it I am convinced that DiMaggio shouldn't have been charged with an error on Harris's drive.

COBB-LAJOIE SCORING MUSS

Happily there has been only one scoring scandal in baseball history, but boy! that was a gem. It happened many years ago in St. Louis.

There was a swell row when this became known to Ban Johnson, American League president. An investigation followed, one player was suspended from the game and Cobb won the crown.

The lakes, ponds and streams in Massachusetts have been partly nearly fished out. The sport has ceased so that the sea fisheries under the supervision of the State is trouble brings with the same men. This fact has been verified by the forces in charge of the Conservation Department.

The Massachusetts coast between the months of May and October are ideal fishing grounds. The boating facilities, bridges, resorts and jetties that line the rugged coast make it possible for all to enjoy the fun. And best of all, Nature produces where man fails.

When you are forced to pay $16 for a rod, $5 for a reel, $1.50 for a line, $.50 for hatpins and $5 per day for a motor boat, tuna fishing ceases to be a sport, but a business.

William L. Senna of the Athol Rod and Gun Club, informs us that the club is staging its annual banquet and ladies night Monday at Liberty Hall. Secretary Arthur Bisbee and his committee have made plans for a gala evening.

Price RESISTANCE Noted

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

New England trade reviews coming to hand indicate that manufacturers in most lines are still sold up from one to three months, which strongly suggests continuance of active trade in this section well into the second quarter.

While it is unwarranted at this particular time to look for any material increase in business, it appears to have fairly good price resistance. It is also reported that in most cases the fundamental costs are put up rapidly because of wage increases and raw material gains, but that it remains a problem as to how this may be passed on to the public. Despite considerable talk to the contrary, there has been no general advance in the prices of finished products, although occasional items proceed upward, or independents raise a price to the level of the leaders, as noted.

Reviews covering various sections including Maine, Merrimack Valley, Cape Cod, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda, American Smelting, Republic Copper, Calahan Zinc, American Zinc, Texas Corp., Allied Chemical, Standard Oil of Louisiana and Texas Corp.

In a restricted group were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, American Telephone, Radio, South American, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, Pacific Gas & E., Y. Central, Southern Pacific and Great Northern.

Buying in Douglas Aircraft following execution of sit-down strikes in the company's California plants.

MARKET Trend LOWER

QUIET SELLING APPEARS

New York, Feb. 26—Recent speculative favorites lost their popularity in today's stock market and quiet selling put the brakes on an early rally.

While gains of fractions to a point or more were held by selected merchandising, Aircraft and specialty issues, losses of or much were widely distributed in other groups.

Among the stocks showing substantial declines were Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Ward Baking, Seaboard All, Associated Gasoline, Chrysler and Celanese.

Share Losers

Leaning backward most of the session were Bethlehem Steel (unchanged), Motors, Yellow Truck & Coach, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda, American Smelting, Republic Copper, Calahan Zinc, American Zinc, Texas Corp., Allied Chemical, Standard Oil of Louisiana and Texas Corp.

In a restricted group were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, American Telephone, Radio, South American, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, Pacific Gas & E., Y. Central, Southern Pacific and Great Northern.

Buying in Douglas Aircraft following execution of sit-down strikes in the company's California plants.

Stocks were not particularly responsive to statements of the heads of Central and Union Pacific for February gross will be substantially ahead of the 1936 month.

Steel Scrap At New High

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Dow Jones & Co. said today heavy melting steel scrap at Pittsburgh reached a new high at $21.25 a ton, on the sale of nine.

At this level the market was a quote a little above the recent quotation, and at record levels for more than a decade, according to trade authority.

B. & M. Quarter Business to Gain

President Pomeroy of the Boston & Maine R. R. announced he expected the first quarter business of the B. & M. to be better than that of last year.

He said the road had a net income of $15,000 in January, compared with a loss of $400,000 in January, 1936.

SCREEN Highlight AIRING

By N. F. T.

Patrons of the colorful "Hollywood Hotel" program each Friday night (WEEI between 9 and 10 o'clock), have the word of Louella Parsons, noted screen columnist and critic for the Boston Evening American, that said network hour this evening will prove one of the most striking of the entire series to date.

Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck are to be the guests of Miss Parsons tonight and will be introduced at the "make" for an informal visit following Interest Can Take Money, adapted for the air from the new film picture of the same name. Likewise starring Joel and Barbara, Fred MacMurray is the ceremony master of ceremonies, with peppy Raymond Paige orchestra providing tuba to "top off the treat.

DARTMOUTH DOINGS

Dartmouth Night, observed the world over since the year 1900, will take on some degree of new significance this evening (WNAC) when part of the program will be broadcast between 10:30 and 11 o'clock, from the campus at Hanover, N. H.

On Dartmouth Night, graduates of the college congregate wherever they may be and "sit down to dinner" for each such gathering to send a telegram or radiogram to the president of the college, with a message of greetings. Where there are alumni clubs, special meetings are held for the occasion.

On the campus itself in Webster Hall, named after Daniel Webster, students, members of the faculty and friends of the college will gather for the traditional dinner and reading of the messages from old graduates all over the world.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Democrat, Ohio, will speak on "The Supreme Court" (WEEI) tonight from 10:30 to 10:45 p. m. The Congressman has announced himself as favoring the President's proposals for reorganization of the United States Judiciary.

AIR ANNIVERSARY

Radioland's lively "Broadway Varieties," featuring stars of the theater, opera, and radio, has been extended to enter its fifth year on the air. It is broadcast tonight as served (WEEI) by the east this evening at 8 p. m.

The show's roster of talent includes such artists as Oscar Shaw, famous musical comedy star and master-of-ceremonies; Elisabeth Lennox, contralto; Carmela Ponselle, operatic diva; Victor Arden's Orchestra and a chorus of Victor Arden and Elisabeth Lennox just recently celebrated their fourteenth and tenth, respectively, radio anniversaries.

Hearst Papers' Study:

Sweden Solves Pension Problem

Special to the Boston Evening American

New York, Feb. 26—In connection with the current move of the Senate finance committee to consider recasting the Social Security Act old age pensions on a pay-as-you-go basis as suggested by Senator Vandenberg, the nonpartisan Social Security commission, sponsored by the Hearst newspapers, today made public a study of how Sweden had dealt with a similar problem.

In making the announcement for the commission, Mervyle Stanley Rukeyser said that the report had been prepared by Dr. Richard A. Lester, Princeton economist and research member of the commission, who had been in Sweden last summer to study economic conditions there.

Summarizing the Swedish solution to a similar problem of switching from a large reserve fund for old age benefits more nearly to a pay as you go basis, Dr. Lester reported:

"In 1928 a royal commission was appointed to review the Swedish national pension system for contributing old-age and invalidity insurance established in 1913. After six years of study, the commission recommended the abandonment of the full reserve-principle that had been followed for more than 20 years.

SMALLER RESERVE

"A law passed by the Swedish Parliament in 1935 (effective January 1, 1937) carries out the recommendations by providing for a much smaller reserve, for large pensions to old persons in the near future, and later on, when the contribution and interest on the smaller reserve are insufficient to pay full pensions, for a government subsidy from general tax funds.

"In its 1934 report the commission gave the following reasons in support of its recommendation that the reserve be limited to one thousand million kroner (less than 300 million dollars):

"1—Full reserves are not necessary under social insurance since the government levies taxes to cover the benefits. Therefore, a steady income is assured and, on the basis of actuarial studies, future income and expenses can be estimated with a reasonable degree of accuracy. Private insurance companies, on the other hand, do not have absolute assurance that future income from premiums will remain constant or increase.

DOUBLE BURDEN

"2—A full reserve system fails to offer adequate help towards the support of those who reach retirement in the first decades of its operation because such a system only becomes fully effective when people have contributed during most of their lives. Consequently an old-age insurance system "with a strong fund-building tendency imposes a double burden upon the generation living at the time the system is established. This generation is obliged through taxes to contribute to the fund and at the same time is obliged to support its own aged persons who receive only an insufficient amount of pensions."

"3—A limited reserve system readily permits adaption to new conditions. On the other hand, a full-reserve system is too inflexible to adjust to changing economic circumstances and to alterations in living standards, which are bound to occur in the future. Exact pre-determination of wages, costs and benefits far into the future is unrealistic in a changing economic world subject to monetary disturbances. "In order to support the aged of the future at a certain standard of living under such a system, the purchasing power of the money must remain relatively constant so that a certain pension when due will have the same purchasing power as estimated when the size of the contributions was fixed." Judging from the recent past, such monetary stability is unlikely during the next 4 or 5 decades. Since the government compels contributions, "the level of the pension paid must of necessity be in proportion to the general standard of living at the time when they are due."

ASSURANCE LACKING

"4—There is no assurance that the reserve will be invested in such a way "that the interest on it will represent any increase in the real national income." That is necessary if the burden on future generations for support of the aged is to be lightened by reason of the reserve fund.

"In a special report to the commission, Professor Bertil Ohlin, a well-known Swedish economist, says that the nation has no age in the same sense that an individual does and therefore, that the government need not save up for its old-age needs the way an individual does."

Jobs for All Workers In Four Years?

THE National Industrial Conference Board asserts that if business activity should increase four more years at the rate of the last four years, unemployment will end.

Note carefully that this result will be gained IF there is CONTINUED INCREASE in business activity.

In other words, employing industries must be ABLE to hire workers.

Many things could prevent this.

Anything in the social, economic or political life of the nation that obstructs business activity will stand in the way of re-employment.

Strikes that choke production and throw thousands of men into idleness are social obstructions.

Taxes that restrict the ability of industry to expand are economic obstructions.

Leaders who appeal to class prejudice to further personal ambitions are political obstructions.

America can remove all these obstructions.

But to do so, it must compel its government to rule without waste.

It must adjust labor difficulties through compulsory arbitration.

It must not permit the reasonable differences between workers and employers to be an excuse for civil war.

In short, if America will be SENSIBLE, it can remove the fear that the United States is destined to support a permanent body of unemployed.

Girls Versus Wives

MISS FLORENCE BIRMINGHAM, able president of the Massachusetts Women's Political Club, is a friend of the jobless single girl and a foe of "working wives" and "careerist mothers."

Before the Joint Rules Committee of the Legislature Wednesday, she painted a doleful picture of the plight of unmarried women who cannot find employment.

"Thousands of young girls have been driven through desperation to destruction," she declared, "while these 'married dames' hold the jobs and strut around like peacocks . . .

"There are 5,255,455 married women working in the United States, and if they were forced to return to their homes, the unemployment problem would be immediately cut in half.

"What is more, 'working wives' lower the wage scale of men and single women."

There is much of truth in Miss Birmingham's arguments, though many will say her picture is exaggerated.

In a period of widespread unemployment, nine million persons jobless, women whose husbands are financially able to support them should not be hired in preference to single girls. Few will disagree with that.

But there is another, very important side to the question.

It concerns the thousands of women whose wages support invalid husbands and children too young to work.

It concerns also the many self-sacrificing mothers who, instead of enjoying the ease and rest to which their age is entitled, work to provide education and opportunity for sons and daughters.

Surely Miss Birmingham would not include such women in her indictment of "working wives."

Employment of married women, either in industry or government, is a comprehensive problem, one that demands great study.

It can never be lightly dismissed with a legislative resolution favoring the discharge from her job of EVERY woman who happens to have a husband.

A Victory For Both Sides

WAGE increases throughout most of the New England shoe industry are the fruits of peaceful arbitration.

A few days ago, a general strike was imminent. Seventeen thousand men and women faced temporary loss of jobs and wages. Manufacturers faced the prospect of closed plants.

But the two groups, employes and employers, wisely went into conference, weighing their respective demands and concessions.

There was no disorder, no destruction of property, no displays of hatred or ill will.

Under such auspicious circumstances there could be only one result—VICTORY, MUTUAL VICTORY.

Today, workers go back to their jobs with the guarantee of a larger share in the profits of industry.

And owners of the industry operate their plants and fill the orders that make profits possible.

This happy ending to what might have been a major controversy provides a much-needed lesson for the rest of the country. New England gladly shares it.

The lesson is simply this:

The way to end a strike is to end it before the strike starts—BY PEACEFUL ARBITRATION.

A Suggestion For Schools

FREDERIC W. COOK, Massachusetts Secretary of State, deploring the too general lack of interest in public affairs, suggests that grammar, high schools and colleges make government the subject of practical courses.

He explains:

"Such instruction would enable the voter to cast his ballot more intelligently and to hold office more ably.

"In the last election more than thirty thousand people neglected to vote for President and many only voted for a single candidate, ignoring all the others on the ballot.

"There were some who wasted their ballots by voting for all the candidates of all parties."

Government, directly or indirectly, touches the life of every man, woman and child in this nation. It has become about as vital as the clothes one wears or the food he eats.

Obviously, government is a subject about which no one can know too much. And practical instruction in intelligent voting and office holding ought to prove far more advantageous than many of the courses now emphasized in our school and college curricula.

New York Day by Day

New York, Feb. 26—Thoughts while strolling: What a swell ad Grover Whalen would be for a mustache wax. Add society dead pans: Jay O'Brien. For free fun: A jaunt through a five and ten. George Rector in evening dress suggests a red ribbon across the shirt front. You know, the Austrian baron.

Rhyme: Nobody can lope like Herbert Swope.

Guernsey Curran and his daily lapel notion. Last of the dudes. The more it changes the more it is the same thing note: 1837 the prairie skipper, 1937 the auto trailer. Study in sartorial whams: Bertram Taylor.

Bay Vernia sounds like a train crossing a culvert. And Adela Rogers St. Johns like turning a car's wheels. Choice of spots for a residence in the city limits: The old Claremont Inn site on Riverside Drive. Prize in British horses for the season: young Randolph Churchill.

London stand sign: "What Fools these Morsels Be!" Look alikes: Mussolini and Will Hamilton, the banker. Whatever became of Wheeler and Woolsey? Give Stanley Walker's hat a sweeping side dip and you have Jimmy Walker. Tops in budget boosting: Governor Lehman.

Overheard: "What I need is a Robert Taylor in my life." Palm Readers up for the week-end to show off their tan. Add blow torch beards: Barney Gallant's. A Sunday in the avenue's youngest looking alister. Lunch places come and go but the old Algonquin still gets a celebrity crowd.

Jack Curley is festooning his ringside at wrestling matches with the opposite sex. And they are apparently learning to love the sport. A recent evening a rumpus room and bedroom bejeweled stood up during an exciting twist and screeched "Throw it in, arm!" Among the most enthusiastic wrestling fans are Bob Ripley and Bugs Baer. They are often down front. In younger days they were no slouches as amateur wrestlers themselves.

Surrealism has slipped up on quietly in art circles that it took root before the peasantry knew what it was all about. Greenwich Village now has a Surrealism circle far more enthusiastic than the Dadaistic and Dada devotees in other years. Perhaps the most suspicious of the Surrealists is James Thurber, whose cockeyed insanities have added greatly to the joffiness of a mad era.

The new school, its sponsors say, is likely to be more a permanency than a vogue. Walt Disney is regarded as one of the conservatives of the new school. There are already a Surrealist night club and a Surrealist tea room.

Among many venerable elevator operators in New York are side-aways of the depression. Men of affluence and stable estates who took it on the chin with most of the world in the market crash. A reporter found three in an East End apartment who had once owned their own homes in an area almost as exclusive.

The elevator man's post is, like the cashier's in a night restaurant, almost certain of hiding his identity. Scarcely anyone ever looks into the elevator man's face. And the work is of the lighter sort, suitable for those whose years often bar them from heavier tasks.

Perhaps the man who knew the Duke of Windsor, when he was princing it as Wales, as well as any American is Cole Porter, the song writer. They were on many evenings quite pally. Edward liked the Porter tunes and has a record of every one made. He also enjoyed hearing the former Peru, Ind., boy improvise and sing to a select coterie some of his ribald ditties such as "Mrs. Otis Regrets." Porter was often a welcome guest at the Prince's town house, and several times they made the rounds of gay Paree together.

I once ran afoul of the Cole Porter genus of humor. It was a night at the Fraschatti in Havre on the eve of sailing. I told the proprietor to get me the recipe when perhaps I should have asked for the concierge.

Anyway, I was given Porter, also among those sailing. I asked for ice water, and with a faked French accent he began to interrogate me on the size of the ice I desired. It was all so cock-eyed and dumb that he had me screaming with annoyance. I must have told him 25 times just any sized ice would do—just to bring a pitcher of ice water and not to mind the dimensions. It was several days before I knew of the hoax.

The Devil's Roost

Congressman Hamilton Fish, in a Narcotics Education Week address, declared that eighty per cent of narcotic addicts BECOME CRIMINALS.

He said further that thirty-two per cent of the inmates of Federal penal institutions are either addicts or traffickers in DOPE.

Nothing could more sharply expose the DOPE HABIT as a one-way ticket to a life of crime.

Dope fills prisons, asylums, hospitals and GRAVES.

Dope also fills the pockets of dealers, smugglers and peddlers WITH PROFITS.

It is the TRAFFIC in dope that is the heart of the evil.

The miserable wretches who have already wrecked their lives may be beyond hope.

But the criminals who PREY UPON HUMAN MISERY are not beyond the penalty of laws properly enacted and properly enforced.

These MERCHANTS OF MISERY belong behind prison bars.

America can reduce crime and poverty, and prevent the destruction of thousands of men and women, by PUTTING THEM THERE.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

A friend of mine has written a completely horrible book.

Being honorable, intelligent and well-bred, he frankly admits that it isn't the sort of thing one leaves lying around in a living room—not at all a volume for children, morons or sensation seekers. Yet this ghastly treatise undoubtedly heads the list of current MUST Reading.

Elsie Robinson

It is about crime. About revolting forms of crime which—it's a million to one odds—you have never heard. Even nine out of ten law enforcement agents are unacquainted with these abominations.

Indeed, it is pitiful that a knowledge of them need enter the mind of any decent man or sensitive woman.

But that knowledge has at last become unavoidable. For these crimes are no longer secret debaucheries, lurking in widely come out in the open, become organized and extended until even the simplest village, humblest home or most obscure cafe can't be free from their taint.

Crime today is America's biggest business . . . a business which nets millions daily for human rats, buzzards, weasels and skunks who control it.

SHOCKING FACTS

Knowing this, Courtney Ryley Cooper—whom J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-men, credits with knowing "more about crime and criminals than any other writing man in America"—has compiled this book, "Here's to Crime". Its statements backed by unimpeachable names, indisputable statistics.

This is no sensational "thriller." It is the most sickening yet honest report ever presented of a nation's shame . . . the most scathing indictment of your and my individual responsibility for that shame.

Girls bought and sold like cattle . . . driven literally at the point of a bloody lash from one disease hell to another. Boys lured by medical charlatans, deliberately infected with the ghastliest of all diseases. Small children secretly taught the use of narcotics, within the shadow of the school house door. Unspeakable vileness spreading within our cities.

The Big Shots—the gamblers, racketeers, quacks, shyster lawyers, crooked politicians, gangsters and gun molls—they are not responsible for these horrors. YOU AND I ARE RESPONSIBLE . . . YOU AND I WHO ALLOW SUCH CONDITIONS TO FLOURISH UNDER OUR VERY NOSES BECAUSE, SECRETLY, WE EITHER ADMIRE OR IGNORE THE CRIMINAL AND HIS WOMAN.

Within the last ten years we have had crime books by the hundreds, but never before has a book so ruthlessly torn the veil from vice—and our own attitude toward it.

RUTHLESS TRUTH

We are tragically infantile, we Americans, either smugly content with our ignorance, fairy tale conception of life . . . or secretly in revolt, weary of our colorless careers, furtively longing to be Diamond Dicks or Cyanide Sallys.

In either case, we remain unaware or indifferent to the ugly reality. And never has an author wielded more influence than such scathing contempt as does Mr. Cooper!

AMERICA BOYS! IT ROTS OPENLY, WITH BANDS PLAYING. HUSTLERS BECKONING. NEON SIGNS ADVERTISING WHERE, WHEN AND HOW. AND HIGHLY PAID EXPERTS DIRECTING EVERY DETAIL OF ITS FAR-FLUNG FOUL-NESS.

Very well. If America is to rot . . . if you and I, who hold the control, are to permit America to rot, the least we can do is to "look it the record."

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Reading of the ban placed by various nations on "volunteers" for service in Spain's civil war, one must realize that another conflict in Europe is inevitable. When citizens of many nations have such an urge to fight that they must plunge into some other country's civil war to gratify this savage desire, that evidences the existence of a dangerous spirit. There is not in Europe enough of an honest desire for peace to avert war.

Senators Borah and Johnson oppose the "cash-and-carry" neutrality bill, arguing that it constitutes a surrender of American rights to freedom of the seas. We maintained our rights to freedom of the seas during the World War and got into that conflict. Our cemeteries are full of motorists who insisted upon taking the right-of-way to which they thought they were entitled. Keeping out of the next war will be worth a million times more to us than maintaining any right to freedom of the seas.

The committee for economic and social progress, in its recent report to President Roosevelt, gave an illuminating comparison between public and private business. Comparing costs of housing projects for low income families it cited:

"In Greater New York, according to our best available information, the Ten Eyck project will cost the government $8,588, per rehoused family. In that same city, the hillside housing of similar physical type, BUILT BY THE SAME GENERAL CONTRACTOR, UNDER THE MANAGEMENT OF PRIVATE ENTERPRISE cost $4,038 per family.

"Compared with the 1930 census of rents and values, the average dwelling unit in the Ten Eyck project will be better than those occupied by 77 per cent of the families in New York City."

There is food for serious thought in those statements.

Royalty in Exile

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

A very handsome old gentleman in the baggy trousers and leather leggings of a Dutch gentleman-farmer gazes across the German border with a close and anxious eye on Herr Hitler.

Edwin C. Hill

Even in burlesque garb there is something regal about the white-haired, white-bearded septuagenarian. And for good reason. Only twenty years ago he was one of the great of earth, the master of the most formidable legions in Europe. He is William of Hohenzollern, in exile.

None knows better than he how little he has to hope for from any political convulsion in Germany. His day is done, his race is run. Age is against him, and the unforgettable fact that he fled from the field in his country's bitterest hour. Nowadays he spends much of his time in his study, at the top of a tower, writing his memoirs and contemplating the portrait of a young man in a field marshal's uniform, blazing with jewels—a young man with a sword at his side and fiercely upturned mustaches.

There he sits in his study every afternoon, astride the saddle from which he used to survey his long, gleaming regiments of goose-stepping soldiers, and reads the latest news from his homeland. Instead of a chair the old man climbs into the saddle in front of his desk and dreams he is on parade in front of the army.

On the walls of the study are hung pictures and mementoes which recall the great days of German imperialism, when every man was expected to give his life to keep Deutschland Uber Alles, or "Germany Over All."

A MIGHTY WAR-LORD

For years the Kaiser had plumed himself as the great warlord of Europe, and he vastly is flattered by the photos in his study which show him in a very possible military pose—as field marshal, admiral, general, captain, and even as a young lieutenant in the Infantry Guards.

On his breast are the jeweled diplomatic orders with which sovereigns everywhere decorated him in the days when nations were afraid of him. William of Hohenzollern as he was before the fatal year of 1914!

In a sad, plebeian villa at Coburg, lives another whose day is done and whose race is run, Ferdinand of Bulgaria. He was only a half-pay lieutenant in the white tunic and gold lace cap of an Austrian hussar regiment when he was elected king of the most troubled state in the Balkans. He lived as a grand monarch until he made the one mistake which kings must not make. He bet on the wrong horse.

HOPELESS ELDERS

He picked the Germans to win instead of the Allies. Now, all but forgotten, he carries on as the Count de Manourg, an ageing gentleman in an Homburg hat, with a stomach and with a white beard.

These are the elders of the exiled royalties of Europe. For the juniors there is still the ghost of a chance. In a fourth-floor suite of a hotel of Fontainbleau, near Paris dwells another man without a country, Alfonso of Spain. Much of his time he spends in traveling to appease his restless nature, using the title of Duke of Toledo.

Easily recognized wherever he goes, he never fails to respond to applause by lifting his green soft hat or waving his walking stick. He waits without bitterness for whatever roll the wheel of politics may take down in Spain.

CHIEF ROMANOFF

The Romanoff who calls himself Czar of all the Russians, the Grand Duke Cyril, spends most of his time on his wife's estate in Germany, while issuing pompous manifestoes to Russian royalists. Of all the surviving Romanoffs, Cyril is the highest in succession, however thin his chances are of ever mounting the throne of Ivan the Terrible and Catherine the Great.

Most interesting of all, the Prince Charlie of modern times is the handsome young Archduke Otto of Austria, head of the unhappy House of Hapsburg and heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary. Advised and encouraged by his remarkably ambitious and strong-minded mother, Otto, who has just passed his 24th birthday, confidently awaits the hour when he will be called to take the one-time twin monarchies.

To his mother, the Empress Zita, their ambition is the brain of her life. She will go down in history as one of the most striking figures of the times.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

"Looking pleasant," while she endures boredom, is a feat which woman has raised to the heights of heroism.

Even modern feminism has not cured her of this atavistic tendency to accept meekly all the horrid, monotonous tasks of life as her portion—and pretend to LIKE it.

I doubt if any photographer ever had the temerity to request a MAN to "Look pleasant, please." Because a man absolutely refuses to look pleasant unless he FEELS pleasant. His magnificent capacity for escaping boredom, his unwavering determination NOT to be bored amounts to positive genius!

Helen Rowland

But no matter what Fate hands her, a woman is expected to accept it with a smile of delight—whether it's a wedding gift, a job or the wrong husband.

She is even supposed to accept spinsterhood with grateful hurrahs. Marjorie Hills didn't suggest that any MAN should "Live Alone and Like It." did she? No, she didn't even suggest that he get MARRIED and like it!

MUST SMILE ALWAYS

No matter what she draws in the matrimonial lottery, a bride is supposed to look "RADIANT"; as a society reporter ever mentioned "the radiant bridegroom," because the average bridegroom looks like the "before taking" picture in a liver pill advertisement. You can lead him to the altar—but you can't make him like it!

A man will dodge a tiresome, uninteresting girl as he would dodge a creditor or the plague. And no hostess can force him to be attentive to a dull girl for more than three minutes.

Catch a man sitting for five hours in a beauty parlor having his head scrubbed with sand, his eyebrows plucked and his face pummeled! Or going on a starvation diet and spending a whole afternoon in a steam room in order to melt a few pounds off his waistline. Not while he's conscious!

A girl on the contrary, deliberately lets herself in for all these forms of inquisition, and cultivates more.

H. G. Wells Bites

By Benjamin DeCasseres

H. G. Wells, in his latest fantastic motion picture, "The Man Who Could Work Miracles," has, either consciously or unconsciously, revealed that all the planners and Utopians of the world have left out just one thing in their calculations—and that is the INNER MAN.

Man can be regimented externally, his physical life can be put in a straitjacket by force, but the mental and emotional life of each individual goes on aspiring, dreaming, gnawing, planning and living a life of its own, which in time will upset the best laid plans of dictators and blueprint economists.

The hero of Wells' story is given power by the gods to perform miracles. His power is absolute. He can alter all things on earth. He can do everything except the one thing his heart desires to do—that is, compel the girl he loves to love him.

He summons all the powerful men of the earth before him and in a soap-box oration commands them to "make a better world." He can even stop the revolution of the earth—BUT HE HAS NO POWER OVER THE HEART OF A WOMAN.

This is precisely the illusion of all the plotters and planners. They believe that the control of physical things gives them the control of those things that are not physical, the things not seen with the eye or that cannot be touched with the hand—the mental, moral and emotional reactions of the inner being—THE SOUL OF THE PHYSICAL MACHINE.

We are overrun today with these Wells-like "Miracles." They forbid this and that, they canalize the physical life of millions with a stroke of the pen. They order changes like gods.

They conceive man as an automaton—not as a living, evolving entity.

Absolute materialists—all of them—they are blind to what the hero of the Wells fantasy found out. That thought, emotions, dreams and the desire for individual life CANNOT BE LEASHED OR TIED TO A DOORMAT.

Their plans and plottings crumble in the dust finally under the disintegrating power of that which no one has seen, felt, tasted, smelled or heard—that is, thought, passion, the will-to-be-one's-self at any price.

"The Man Who Could Work Miracles" is a fine satire on the pest of the planet—MR. FIX-IT.

Bible Text: "The Lord is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble."—Nahum 1:5. Suggested by Bishop John Taylor Smith of London, now visiting Boston.
